New Sinai pact appears near

JERUSALEM (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger met with Israeli leaders for nearly six hours today, sharpening the dozens of clauses that make up the new Sinai pact.

He indiiated the details would keep him shuttling between Jerusalem and Alexandria at least through Saturday. A senior American official said earlier the pact may be initialed Sunday or Monday.

Kissinger later flew to Egypt, saying he hoped to return to Jerusalem tonight. He said he wanted to accomplish as much as possible before the Jewish Sabbath at sundown Friday closes government offices. 8

On Wednesday a senior American official said a few clauses "of at least symbolic significance" remained to be ironed out in the Sinai pact.

Kissinger returned to Jerusalem from Alexandria, Egypt, Wednesday night for more talks with Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and the rest of th Israeli negotiating team.

"We are continuing to move forward," Kissinger told reporters after a two-hour meeting with the Israelis Wednesday night. "The number of issues that remain are relatively small ... There are problems of details of some significance."

U.S. sources said one point still to be settled is the precise number of American-manned electronic surveillance posts to be stationed around the Gidi and Mitla mountain passes to give warning of military operations once Israel has pulled back to a new defense line.

Israel originally sought about six posts, but has now limited its demand to two or three. In addition, the Israelis and Americans would operate a post on the Egyptian side of the Gidi pass while the Egyptians and Americans would man one on the Israeli side.

Israel is insisting on the presence of the Americans to avert a recurrence of Egypt's expulsion of the United Nations buffer force in the Sinai Desert just before the 1967 Arab-Israeli war. Under the new agreement, the U.S. staff would be removed only if both Israel and Egypt approved.

Subject to congressional approval, the posts would be manned by a total of about 100 American technicians armed with sidearms, U.S. sources said. They would be recruited from private industry and from former employes of the Central Intelligence Agency and the National Security Agency, the sources said.

Israeli Defense Minister Shimon Peres told a meeting of the ruling Labor party "almost American involvement" would result from the new agreement. Rabin told the same meeting that Israel could defend its new defense line with the troops it now has.

The major points of the pact already worked out include Israeli withdrawal from the passes and the Abu Rudeis oilfields; return of the oilfields and the former U.N. buffer zone to Egypt and a new U.N. buffer zone made up of the other territory Israel is relinquishing.

Both governments will renounce the use or threat of force for more than three years. Egypt will allow Israeli cargo through the Suez Canal, and the United States will pledge economic and military aid for Israel.

Jones says special session will be held

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Republican leader in the Missouri Senate says the legislature will begin a special session to extend the half-cent transportation sales tax on Sept. 22.

A. Clifford Jones of St. Louis, who has consistently supported the policies of GOP Gov. Christopher S. Bond, met with the governor Tuesday night.

But he declined to say Wednesday on what official information he was basing the selection of the Sept. 22 date.

Bond, who has publicly maintained an air of indecision on whether a special session should be held, said earlier this week that his decision on the matter would be announced in the next few days.

Jones said calculations of the time needed to approve the extension and put it into effect before the current expiration date of Dec. 31 requires that the special session begin on or before Sept. 22.

"But I'm not infallible," the senator added.

He first announced the date during a session of the Legislative Committee on State Fiscal Affairs Wednesday afternoon, saying flatly, "It will be Sept. 22."

No further explanation was sought by the other committee members.

That had followed a comment by Sen. Richard Webster, R-Carthage, that the most common rumor around the capitol now was that the session would begin Sept. 22.

Malden man killed

A Malden man was killed and four persons were injured in four area traffic accidents Wednesday, the highway patrol announced today. The fatality was the 68th on Southeast Missouri roads this year, compared to 75 at the same time last year.

J. T. Pickard, 54, of Malden was dead on arrival at Croom-Morehead Clinic in Malden, where he was taken following a two-truck accident at 2:45 p.m. Wednesday at the junction of Highway 62 and Route J four miles east of Malden in New Madrid County.

The accident occurred when Loyd Randall Tippy, 23, of Sikeston was unable to stop his northbound truck on Route J after applying his brakes at the intersection and his vehicle struck the right side of Pickard's eastbound tractor-trailer. Both vehicles then ran off the north side of the highway and Tippy's truck overturned.

Tippy received minor injuries and was treated at Croom-Morehead Clinic.

Pickard was born May 3, 1921 in Clarkton to the late James Craig and Cora Neeley Pickard.

He was a World War II veteran and was employed as a truck driver for Malden Grain Co.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Wanda Lee Pickard of Malden; two sons, Ronnie Pickard, stationed by the Air Force in Anchorage, Alaska, and Bruce Pickard, stationed by the Air Force in Anchorage, Alaska, and Bruce Pickard of Gulfport, Miss.; three brothers, Jewell Pickard of Malden; Paul Pickard of Harviell and Aubrey Pickard of Poplar Bluff; one sister, Mrs. Marie Baker of Poplar Bluff; and three grandchildren.

The body is at Landess Funeral Home in Malden, where arrangements are incomplete.

In a one-vehicle accident at 6:40 p.m. Wednesday 10 miles north of Poplar Bluff on Highway 67, a northbound tractor-trailer driven by Donald James Bratton, 23, of Lonoake, Ark., ran off the road on a curve through a deep ditch.

Bratton received moderate injuries and was taken to Lucy Lee Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

Minnie Myrtle Easter, 53, of Ellsinore received minor injuries in a one-vehicle accident at 9 p.m. Wednesday 15 miles northwest of Poplar Bluff on Highway 67 when her westbound car ran off the right side of the road into a deep ditch.

She was taken to Doctors Hospitalin Poplar Bluff.

Bill O'Ryan, 26, of Memphis, Tenn., a passenger in a car driven by Ronald S. Lavin, 27, of Memphis, received minor injuries in a two-vehicle accident at 9:45 a.m. Wednesday on Highway 72 one mile north of Patton in Bollinger County.

The accident occurred when a northbound pickup truck, driven by Charles A. Minich, 71,of Marquand made a left turn into the path of Lavin's westbound car.

Damaged corn valued at $25,000

Fire caused extensive damage to 600 bushels of corn in a corn bin at 4 a.m. today at DeKalb Agricultural Research Inc., 1203 W. Malone Ave.

A fire apparently broke out in a dryer and then spread into the bin.

The 600 bushels of seed corn were valued at approximately $25,000, firemen said.

At 9:13 p.m. Wednesday, firemen were called to the Jerry Dyer home, 406 Edmondson Drive, when a load of house insulation in the back of Dyer's pickup truck caught fire.

Firemen said the fire burned the paper wrapping off the insulation, but did not burn the insulation itself. The cause of the fire was unknown.

At 7:40 p.m. Wednesday, firemen were called to extinguish a trash fire at Bridger Plumbing & Heating Co., 607 Davis Blvd.

School tax levy lowered

EAST PRAIRIE — The R-2 board of education, in special session Wednesday afternoon, voted to reduce the school tax levy from the $3.25 per $100 assessed valuation to $3.09 per $100 assessed valuation.

Supt. Gerald McElrath said the reduction of last year's tax rate was due to an increase in the assessed valuation for Mississippi County by order of the State Tax Commission.

Valuation on personal property in the district decreased by 8.3 per cent from 1974. However, real estate valuation in the district increased 11.1 per cent,which gave the distirct an overall increase of 7.85 per cent.

In lowering the tax rate, McElrath said the board was abiding by the law but was concerned that the amount of money to be received under the new levy does not allow any excess money to combat inflationary costs faced by the district.

The board agreed that should operating costs continue to rise, an increase in next year's tax rate would probably be necessary.

The district, which maintains a AAA rating, has one of the lowest tax rates in the state and assessed valuation behind each student is far below state average, according to McElrath.

Due to its low tax rate the district will lose $21,686 in second- level money, based on $14 per enrolled student, which is paid to districts with higher tax rates. To qualify for the additional aid, the R-2 district

Food basket cost drops 19 cents

By JACKIE SCHOENEMAN
WOMEN'S EDITOR

Housewives can stop wondering. Prices for coffee rose a moderate three cents a pound in July. But this is largely due to grocery shelves still being stocked with a reserve inventory. Because of bad growing conditions in the South American countries, the coffee harvest was poor and will result in much higher prices as consumers deplete the lower-priced coffee.

July's average food basket cost in Sikeston dropped 19 cents from the previous month. The cost of 42 selected items to consumers averaged $32 at the end of July, compared to $32.19 for the same items in June.

Food basket costs were determined after a survey of six grocery stores--Sikeston IGA, Safeway, Liberty, S&S Discount, Marks Food Mart and Barkett's Big Star--the same stores used in previous surveys.

Bacon and egg lovers suffered as prices for a pound of bacon went up a whopping 31 cents and a dozen large eggs rose nine cents.

Other meat rpices found a pound of hamburger a nickel higher, while a pound of round steak, with bone, dipped six cents.

Tomatoes dropped 12 cents for a pound while their salad bowl companion—head of lettuce—cost one cent more.

The leading price-gainer—24 ounces of vegetable oil—rose 33 cents. Five pounds of sugar fell 12 cents and a five-pound bag of flour dropped three cents. A 16-ounce loaf of bread cost six cents more.

Turn to page 5 for a complete table of the 42 items surveyed.

Chicken and radio stolen

Four cases of chickens and a citizens band radio have been reported stolen, police said today.

Four cases of chickens, weighing 68 pounds and valued at $142, were taken from a walk-in freezer at Kentucky Fried Chicken in Midtowner Village Shopping Center.

Police said the theft occurred between 9:30 p.m. Tuesday and 8:45 a.m. Wednesday. The burglars broke the locks off the doors to two freezers.

A citizens band radio valued at $136 was taken from a car belonging to Anthony Ham, Route One, Wednesday night while the car was parked on the west side of Kingsway Plaza Mall.

Clark has surgery

Bentsen rally free

The old-fashioned political rally for presidential candidate Lloyd M. Bentsen of Houston, Tex., will go on as planned at 8 p.m. today at the Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo grounds without featured entertainer Roy Clark.

Clark underwent a gall bladder operation Wednesday night in Toronto, Canada, requiring cancellation of his nationwide tour. Entertainers to appear as scheduled tonight are Minnie Pearl, Buck Trent, Tommy Overstreet and the Nashville Express and Three of a Kind.

Admission to the rally will now be free and people who have already paid for tickets will be refunded their money. Refunds will be given on written request at a special area set up at the rodeo grounds.

Sen. Bentsen is a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1976. He and Mrs. Bentsen will be joined at the rally by former Gov. and Mrs. Warren E. Hearnes of Charleston and many other state and national leaders in the Democratic party.

Sen. Bentsen will hold a press conference at 5 p.m. today at the Ramada Inn.

Work to begin on controversial sewer district

DEXTER — Work on the controversial sewer district along Dexter Creek will probably start within the next two weeks, according to Gary L. Gaines, environmental engineer with C. R. Trotter and Associates, the consulting firm in charge of the project.

Work on the district will be done by McMullin Excavating Co., will cost about $53,000 and affect about 40 families. The project will be paid for by the families involved — the amount per family depending on the amount of property owned.

Gaines explained that state law requires the city to take the total cost of the project and divide it among the property owners affected. In this case, cost to each property owner will be about four or five cents per square foot.

The city attorney will then prepare a special tax statement for each owner's share of the cost. The owner can pay it immediately and not be charged any interest, or may pay in 10 annual installments at eight per cent interest.

Some families living within the district are already connected with an existing sewer line. Those families will not have to pay for the sewer project, Gaines said.

In addition to paying for the construction of the sewer lines, individual home owners must also pay to have lines installed from the main line to the house. The city contractor is responsible for the main district, and will lay the sewer lines only to the edge of the property.

Each home owner may then contract with whomever he wishes to lay the line from the edge of the property to the house, as long as the contractor and the work is approved by the city.

Some of the work to be done will include installing 5,400 feet of eight-inch sewer line, 18 manholes and 50 service lines.

Most of the work will be done in public streets and alleys, Gaines said, and easements have already been signed by owners of property on which some of the work will take place.

Some of the streets in the area will be torn up during the work. Crane Street, for example, which runs behind the International Hat Co. plant, will be torn up extensively since the sewer line will run right through the center of the street.

However, most lines will run alongside roads in the area.

Part of the contract the city has with McMullin is that the city will take care of the streets. After McMullin installs and covers the lines, the city will see to it that the roads are put back in shape.

The City Council decided in May to go ahead with the work. The project has been delayed primarily because of bad weather. McMullin is waiting for dry enough weather to start the work.

Another reason is that a condition under which McMullin agreed to do the work is that he could do it when he could work it into his schedule.

Gaines said bids were requested for the work in 1973. The lowest bid submitted was $60,000 – which exceeded the $45,500 engineer's estimate. According to state law a bid cannot be accepted if it is greater than the engineer's estimate.

C. R. Trotter and Associates, in charge of the project, redesigned the project and re-evaluated the cost. This time the engineer's estimate shot up to $73,600.

"About that time prices just went crazy," V. Darryl Orr, a sanitary engineer for the Trotter firm, said.

Bids for the project were again requested, but this time not a single bid was submitted. According to state law, when no bids are submitted a city can negotiate with a private company to get the best price possible for a job.

The city chose to negotiate with McMullin, and reached an agreement. Gains said McMullin was giving the city a very good price for the work.

the official name of the sewer district is 73-3, but many refer to it as the Hickory Street Sewer District or the Dexter Creek Sewer District. In much of the district there is no existing sewer system and it has been reported that raw sewage is being discharged directly into

The old-fashioned political rally for presidential candidate Lloyd M. Bentsen of Houston, Tex., will go on as planned at 8 p.m. today at the Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo grounds without featured entertainer Roy Clark.

Clark underwent a gall bladder operation Wednesday night in Toronto, Canada, requiring cancellation of his nationwide tour. Entertainers to appear as scheduled tonight are Minnie Pearl, Buck Trent, Tommy Overstreet and the Nashville Express and Three of a Kind.

Admission to the rally will now be free and people who have already paid for tickets will be refunded their money. Refunds will be given on written request at a special area set up at the rodeo grounds.

Sen. Bentsen is a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1976. He and Mrs. Bentsen will be joined at the rally by former Gov. and Mrs. Warren E. Hearnes of Charleston and many other state and national leaders in the Democratic party.

Sen. Bentsen will hold a press conference at 5 p.m. today at the Ramada Inn.

Work to begin on controversial sewer district

DEXTER — Work on the controversial sewer district along Dexter Creek will probably start within the next two weeks, according to Gary L. Gaines, environmental engineer with C. R. Trotter and Associates, the consulting firm in charge of the project.

Work on the district will be done by McMullin Excavating Co., will cost about $53,000 and affect about 40 families. The project will be paid for by the families involved — the amount per family depending on the amount of property owned.

Gaines explained that state law requires the city to take the total cost of the project and divide it among the property owners affected. In this case, cost to each property owner will be about four or five cents per square foot.

The city attorney will then prepare a special tax statement for each owner's share of the cost. The owner can pay it immediately and not be charged any interest, or may pay in 10 annual installments at eight per cent interest.

Some families living within the district are already connected with an existing sewer line. Those families will not have to pay for the sewer project, Gaines said.

In addition to paying for the construction of the sewer lines, individual home owners must also pay to have lines installed from the main line to the house. The city contractor is responsible for the main district, and will lay the sewer lines only to the edge of the property.

Each home owner may then contract with whomever he wishes to lay the line from the edge of the property to the house, as long as the contractor and the work is approved by the city.

Some of the work to be done will include installing 5,400 feet of eight-inch sewer line, 18 manholes and 50 service lines.

Most of the work will be done in public streets and alleys, Gaines said, and easements have already been signed by owners of property on which some of the work will take place.

Some of the streets in the area will be torn up during the work. Crane Street, for example, which runs behind the International Hat Co. plant, will be torn up extensively since the sewer line will run right through the center of the street.

However, most lines will run alongside roads in the area.

Part of the contract the city has with McMullin is that the city will take care of the streets. After McMullin installs and covers the lines, the city will see to it that the roads are put back in shape.

The City Council decided in May to go ahead with the work. The project has been delayed primarily because of bad weather. McMullin is waiting for dry enough weather to start the work.

Another reason is that a condition under which McMullin agreed to do the work is that he could do it when he could work it into his schedule.

Gaines said bids were requested for the work in 1973. The lowest bid submitted was $60,000 – which exceeded the $45,500 engineer's estimate. According to state law a bid cannot be accepted if it is greater than the engineer's estimate.

C. R. Trotter and Associates, in charge of the project, redesigned the project and re-evaluated the cost. This time the engineer's estimate shot up to $73,600.

"About that time prices just went crazy," V. Darryl Orr, a sanitary engineer for the Trotter firm, said.

Bids for the project were again requested, but this time not a single bid was submitted. According to state law, when no bids are submitted a city can negotiate with a private company to get the best price possible for a job.

The city chose to negotiate with McMullin, and reached an agreement. Gains said McMullin was giving the city a very good price for the work.

the official name of the sewer district is 73-3, but many refer to it as the Hickory Street Sewer District or the Dexter Creek Sewer District. In much of the district there is no existing sewer system and it has been reported that raw sewage is being discharged directly into

A JUSTIFIED VETO

Whether in the field of public education or corrections or welfare, members of the Missouri General Assembly have insisted upon co-ordination of services, recognizing that fragmented efforts will not provide the state with a fully-effective program in the various enterprises in which it is concerned.

Interestingly, while insisting upon such performance from the executive branch, the General Assembly has displayed gross amounts of poor coordination, and in some instances virtually no coordination at all.

Bond vetoed a $4,900,000 appropriation for a state office building in midtown St. Louis. The Legislature had approved spending the taxpayers' money for a project that, despite whatever need might exist, had absolutely no plans. No site had been selected for this nearly $5,000,000 project and no building plan had been drawn.

It strains credibility, we realize, for taxpayers of this state to realize that their elected representatives could actually appropriate $4,900,000 for a project which no one, in any office in state government, has visualized sufficiently to locate or plan.

The Governor's veto, some lawmakers complained, was in retaliation for the General Assembly's refusal to grant funds to complete the Wainwright building complex in downtown St. Louis. We suspect the chief executive was not retaliating at all, but was using common sense to veto a project for which no plans had been drawn. And, yes, the Legislature had failed to appropriate sufficient funds to complete the Wainwright project, which does have both a location and plans for completion. The Legislature chose to ignore the Wainwright project, however, and voted funds for some kind of project in the midtown area of St. Louis.

We admit that this is totally illogical, but it is exactly the procedure followed by the last General Assembly.

One explanation, of course, is that the Legislature doesn't know what it's doing. Another is that the prime mover of the midtown project is none other than the Speaker of the House, Representative Richard J. Rabbitt, a resident of the midtown area. And it just so happens that Speaker Rabbit is running for lieutenant governor next year and would like a little credit for his efforts to improve the midtown area of St. Louis.

Whatever the political reason, the practical course is to complete one project and then develop plans for the next one. The exact opposite course was taken by the Legislature, which insists upon co-ordination from others but demands it not from its own members.—The Daily Dunklin Democrat, Kennett, Mo.

PROTECTING CONSUMERS FROM SHOPLIFTING

Nevada enjoys the benefits of one of the most effective consumer protection measures of any state in the Union--a new "get-tough" shoplifting law. The law is reinforced by a statewide education program, cosponsored by the Nevada Retail Association and the State Attorney General's Office. The new law provides that shoplifters pay all legal fees as well as civil fines of anywhere between $100 and $250 to the merchant who files a complaint. Parents of minors found guilty of shoplifting must assume payment of all fees and fines.

These stern penalties are Nevada's way of recognizing that shoplifting is a major crime, not only against merchants, but against consumers. By placing the burden of costs on the guilty, legal action against shoplifters is encouraged. Heretofore, small merchants were reluctant to prosecute suspected shoplifters because time spent testifying in court is costly and expectations for recovery were minimal. The manager of a local J.C. Penney store in Nevada comments, "The new law gives the smaller merchants an incentive to cooperate with the courts because they now have every opportunity to recover court costs and damages." The educational campaign which has been mounted in conjunction with imposition of Nevada's shoplifting law is far-ranging and aimed at young people. It includes radio, television, newspaper and billboard advertising, plus distribution of pamphlets to schools and posters to stores. The campaign slogan, "Shoplifting In Nevada Is A Handful of Trouble--Don't Risk It," is featured in store display ads and on shopping bags.

Shoplifting costs consumers hundreds of millions of dollars every year as one of the costs of merchandising that must be passed on to customers. The movement that has started in Nevada to curb shoplifting is a consumer protection effort of the first order.

ENTHUSIASM MAKES A DIFFERENCE

When an energetic group like the Boys' Clubs of America rolls up its sleeves and digs into community improvement programs, the area is bound to take on a new sheen.

That is just what happened after the Eastern Branch of the Boys' Clubs of Greater Washington, D.C. initiated its award-winning service organization called "Brothers for the People." As one of 10 recipients of the annual national Honor Awards for Program Excellence, the club offered specific services for a nominal fee. This included yard work, carpentry, floor tiling, painting, plastering and cleanup. Local citizens contacted the club for aid, and no one was turned away because they could not pay for services needed.

The positive approach toward life is typical of the Boys' Clubs, whether it is engaged in community enrichment projects or the training of its one million members in some 1,000 clubs in the U.S. The main thrust of all Boys' Clubs activities is character-building, leadership and self-reliance through friendly guidance as the young people pursue their interests and skills in such areas as vocational training and athletics.

Voluntarism on a local level can work. The boys' Clubs has proven it in thousands of communities across the nation. Any "roll call" of the nation's leading citizens would reveal a substantial number of "graduates" from that 113-year-old organization--men who are proud of America, their community and the youth organization which helped teach them the rudiments of good citizenship, morals and patriotism. The Boys' Clubs of America do, to a large extent, lead the way toward realizing a brighter tomorrow for this country.

USING OUR RESOURCES

It is quite apparent that if the United States is going to solve its various shortage problems, petroleum being the most celebrated one at the present time, it will have to trust the evidence of its own history. It will have to rely more, rather than less, heavily upon the unique production capabilities of the private enterprise system--the best mechanism ever devised to make people produce the things that they, as well as others, need.

Consider the matter of international trade on which the U.S. depends for an adequate supply of many scarce metals and minerals, including petroleum. If we are to buy from other countries, we have to sell to them. And the U.S. multinational corporation is one of the best devices ever developed to maintain our access to foreign markets. U.S. companies investing in production facilities in other nations often do so in order to overcome restrictions which would otherwise prevent their selling U.S.-made products in those countries. In such cases, they maintain access to a market that would otherwise be closed to them.

As the executive of a leading U.S. aerospace and industrial manufacturing concern with over 100 operations in 26 countries around the world has pointed out, "...when we make an acquisition abroad, it is done to expand foreign markets, which in return will generate more work here. Such expansion is not done to obtain cheap labor and tax breaks, but to build a broadly based worldwide business. When we contribute to the building of a healthy world economy, we are helping the United States." A Department of Commerce study has shown that if U.S. companies operating overseas were forced by tax penalties or other restrictions to withdraw from international business it could mean the loss of some 600,000 jobs in the U.S.

In learning to use our national resources wisely, and there is no alternative to this course, we must not overlook our greatest strength--the productive potential and capacity of U.S. investor-owned free enterprise. In this category, the multinational corporation has proved to be a star performer in terms of strengthening our own nation and both directly and indirectly meeting the needs of people at home, as well as in other nations around the world.

THE MISSILE EXPLAINED

(We are now talking about fourth-generation missiles. Despite their sophistication, the method of development seems to be the same as the first, second and third generations as proved by this article, written when President Kennedy was in the White House.)

WASHINGTON — In the now famous Air Force manual, withdrawn temporarily but not forgotten, one of the paragraphs aimed at Air Force Reservists said, "The idea that Americans have a right to know what is going on is foolish."

We poor, ignorant civilian can't be blamed then if we have to resort to conjecture about what is going on with such things as our missile program, which is no longer known as a missile program, but a missile gap.

I was as confused about our missiles as anyone else until I had lunch the other day with an industrialist who explaind it to me. He asked that his name not be mentioned, and since the Air Force won't tell me their secrets I won't tell them mine.

"The trouble with most Americans,' he said, "is that they think ideas for a new missile come from the top. On the contrary, most ideas for missiles are thought up by some $10,000-a-year civilian engineer in some tiny office thousands of miles from the Pentagon.

"Let me give you an example of how a missile is born. One day a civilian engineer has to think of something new, so he writes a paper suggesting we develop an anti-antii- missile missile.

"The civilian, after developing the paper at length, turns it over to a second lieutenant, just out of ROTC, who, knowing less than anyone, immediately signs it and passes it on. The captain over him adds his signature because he also doesn't understand it and doesn't have enough reasons for rejecting it. The paper continus on up through channels with more and more signatures, each officer signing it on the assumption that the guys down below know what they're doing. This is what is known in government circles as 'management from the bottom up.'

"Finally, it goes to the Pentagon who assumes the problem, on the basis of all the signatures, has been thoroughly studied, and they take it over to the Appropriations Committeee who appropriate the money because they don't understnd it either and, therefore, can't say it won't work.

"Besides, all they need to get the missile started is $10 million and, as long as it's such a reasonable request, no one wants to argue about it.

"As soon as the money is appropriated, the public relations people put out a release announcing their branch of the service will soon have an anti-anti-missile missile that, although not the final deterrent, will be the gap-filler which everyone has been waiting for 'until we catch up with the Russians.'

"The program is under way now and in no time at all the appropriations are used up. Nothing has come of the missile, but this is an advantage, not a disadvantage. The people in charge believe it is really an advanced idea, otherwise it would be working already. The reason it couldn't be done, according to the people in charge, is that there wasn't enough money. So appropriations are increased to $75 million, and, whereas only a few hundred men were connected with the original work, thousands are now added on the theory that if you put enough people on a project long enough they will get the job done. This is known as 'snowing the job with manpower.'

"The only thing that has been working so far has been the mimeograph machines in the public relations department, and they have promised the American people an anti-anti-missile missile come hell or high water. When the $75 million is used up, it's no problem to get more money for the project because as long as you keep asking for more money in the Defense Department, no one is going to ask you what you did with the other money. But as soon as you stop asking for money, you're admitting the project is no good. No one has the courage to stop the project after so much money has been expended.

"Finally, the time comes when you have to t est-fire your missile. It doesn't go off. But even this is not a defeat as far as the service goes. After the failure, a general is on tap to explain that it's really a good thing to have failures because they represent progresss. If it worked, it would not be an advanced missile but an obsolete one. Anything that works in missiles in obsolete.

"Therefore, the general explains, the Russians, although they seem ahead in the missile race, are really behind because their missiles work better than ours. Anyone knows a really advanced missile is one on paper that can't get off the ground.

"In the meantime, the engineer who thought up the idea has corrected his original figures. But it's too late. Who is going to listen to a $10,000-a-year civilian engineer when $200 million has been poured into a project?"

Blood in The Sun – What America Lost in Portugal

WASHINGTON — When I slipped out of fire - scarred Portugal, the shrill voice of the perpetually screeching devout left-wing Congresswoman Bella Abzug shouting at CIA director William Colby about covert operations welled back in my ears to compete with the unfamiliar roar of a small propeller plane. I wondered why the embattled axe-swinging Congressperson from Manhattan appeared so unconcerned some weeks ago over Soviet KGB cover operations in a sun-blessed land of gentle people.

She, and others like her who appear to have so much difficulty faulting leftists on so many issues, might like to know that I learned from British intelligence sources in London that American estimates of Soviet subsidy of underground Communist Portuguese operatives totalling some $180 million to $200 million since April 1974 are low.

These millions have gone into the creation of an underground apparatus matched in recent decades only by the old Stalinist Luigi Longo 60,000- man secret Red army which dominated northern Italy until recently. It was dismantled only when its successful political fronts made the army unnecessary. This force had everything from automatic rifles to artillery.

There also were ItalianCommunist killers squads trained by the Soviet secret police in Longo's old "Triangle of Death" in the Bologna-Modena area.

In the past year Portugal has been the site of a similar Soviet invvasion. It's generally forgotten that Communist party general secretary Alvaro Cunhal had been absent from Portugal for so long he actually is a foreign Soviet agent.

He isn't his own master. He answers to the tiny inner cadre of KGB agents hidden deep inthe Soviet "embassy" in Lisbon. It is they who have directed the paymaster operation. And they almost got their money's worth -- a whole nation.

There has been, for example, endless reportage of anti-Communist rioting and the bonfiring of Communist party headquarters – at least 35 of them.

Actually, I'm told, there are over 350 Communist buildings -- all the way from the multistoried stronghold of the 'labor'' Intersindical office building in Lisbon to the one in nearby lovely Sintra to farm communities north of Oporto to the Azores. Where did an allegedly feledgling revolutionary party get the millions necessary for such a vast network? For the most part, the official Communists had cash coming in Swiss, German and sometimes American currency totaling $10 to $12 million couriered monthly into Portugal by KGB agents and official Soviet pouches.

This money paid for presses, new broadcasting equipment, loudspeaker trucks, huge bundles of books, pamphlets, reproducing machinery, communications equipment, banners, posters and well paid full time staffs numbering tens of thousands in 50 or more cities and rural communities.

More important, hundreds of Italian and French thugs were infiltrated along with their political commissars and specialists to take over banks, factories and commercial ventures.

One of the first delegations rushed in by the Soviet "embassy" came from East Germany. The Communist German labor organizers swung the "union federation," the Intersindical, into action. Through it they attempted to take over the post-revolutionary unions which had sprung up spontaneously. However they couldn't touch the postal and telcommunications, some transport and construction workers. Or the farmers.

But the KGB had the money to buy "trade union leaders." That is they simply paid off. Just as they did cadres in the Armed Forces Movement Revolutionary Council and the Navy. In Geneva I learned that money was flowing into numbered Swiss bank accounts from Portugal, where the mercenaries didn't trust the Communists and believed that the opposition of the centrists, the Social Democrats and the Church would crush the Soviets' military government.

Meanwhile, all this has been costly to the Portuguese banking system and the big American, British and German corporations which had been operating and providing jobs in Portugal for years.

Inside the factories, handfuls of Communist agents, directly paid by the party, set up workers' councils, workers' commissions, workers' management boards, workers' production standards and workers' disciplinary courts.

On the agricultural front special farmers' leagues were launched,first in the south, then slowly moved north -- where the real farmers' associations met them head on.

KGB - directed strong-arm squads took over non- Communist city councils such as in the tourist paradise Sintra – only to be tackled by the construction workers.

The terror, the muscle, the brutality has been paid for – cash on the bloody head – by the operatives of what we used to call the "comintern rep." There was a democratic counterattack. But the fight came from the Socialist leaders, Britain's Harold Wilson, Germany's Helmut Schmidt and even Sweden's Prime Minister Olof Palme. To the shame of capitalist America, we permitted some loudmouths to bog down our efforts by enmeshing in futile rhetoric the men who could have helped. And thus America lost face again abroad among those who found their freedom under siege.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: NATO Betrayed?
with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Intelligence reports claim that a Cuban military delegation has been pumping Portuguese officer in Lisbon for NATO secrets. The Cubans were particularly curious, according to the reports, about U.S. naval maneuvers in the Caribbean.

This confirms the worst fears of the other NATO partners, who have been worried about NATO security ever since the communist-leaning junta took over Portugal.

As a NATO member, Portugal has had access to NATO codes and classified documents. Lisbon has also been kept informed on NATO policies, strategies and tactics.

Since the communist sympathizers have come to power in Portugal, NATO codes have been changed, and Lisbon has been cut off from the flow of sensitive information. But a trickle of data still reaches Portugal from its NATO conferees.

In an earlier column, we reported the arrival in Lisbon of a high-powered Cuban delegation, which included Army commanders Senen Casas Regueiro and Fernando Vecino Alegret and Navy Captain Emigdio Baez.

Their surprise appearance as passed off by Lisbon as a ceremonial visit. But our intelligence sources are convinced that the Cubans received secret briefings on NATO and other military matters.

Coutinho has been dubbed "the Red Admiral" by Portuguese settlers in Angola. As governor of th colony, Coutinho encouraged the pro-Moscow faction and helped them get Soviet arms through Luanda and Lobito. This enflamed the three-cornered war in Angola and forced the settlers to flee for their lives to Portugal.

It is understood that the Portuguese military leaders cooperated, but there is no firm intelligence on what secrets were compromised.

Footnote: On August 17, according to our intelligence sources, the "Red Admiral" visited Cuba at the invitation of Cuban Defense Minister Raul Castro. The admiral was greeted by some of the same Cubans he met at the center in Portugal.

ANOTHER COVERUP: The General Services Administration, according to reliable inside sources, has withheld key documents from FBI investigators.

The FBI has until the end of the year to crack a $50 million building scandal in Philadelphia, involving close associates of Senate Minority Leader Hugh Scott, R-Pa.

Thereafter, the statutory deadline runs out, and the culprits will escape the legal consequences.

The FBI, following up on a civil suit which was settled out of court for a reported $1.5 million, is investigating the government's use of the Gateway Building in Philadelphia. Here are the details:

Uncle Sam, seeking office space at a Philadelphia location, advertised for bids. Curiously, GSA selected Gateway, the highest bidder, to receive the contract. At the time of the award, the Gateway building didn't even exist; the site was a vacant lot.

The contract called for annual rents of about $2.6 million for at least 20 years. This would add up to more than $50 million. The government probably could have built its own building for about one-third of that cost.

Not surprisingly, there were charges of favoritism and irregularities from competing developers. The civil case, before it was settled out of court, turned up numerous allegations of fraud and corruption.

The damaging evidence assembled as part of the suit has been impounded by the court. And no one, least of all GSA, seems anxious to help put together a strong case before the statute of limitations runs out.

Our sources have knowledge that important documents have been withheld from the FBI, apparently, to cover up the role of Robert Kunzig, the former Administrator, and Art Sampson, the present Administrator.

Footnote: Scott has consistently denied having played any part in the contract award. The Justice Department confirmed that the statute of limitations would run out at the end of the year but claimed that GSA had cooperated with the FBI. Our sources have information to the contrary. A spokeswoman for GSA declined to comment.

POSTSCRIPT FROM CHICAGO: In an earlier column, we reported that ex-President Nixon spoke up in defense of Chicago's Mayor Richard Daley in 1970 after ex-Attorney General John Mitchell had threatened to cut the mayor "to shreds."

Those present during the conversation went away with the impression that the Justice Department, as a result, might havve been more lenient with Daley.

We attempted to reach former U.S. Atrtorney James Thompson to ask whether the Justice Department had ever tried to influence his investigation of Daley. We have now located Thompson who told us emphatically that he received absolutely no instructions on Daley from the Justice Department.

Although he had not assigned a "hit squad" to go after Daley, said Thompson, he had investigated all reports of wrongdoing by the mayor and had submitted information to a grand jury. But it was insufficient, said Thompson, to justify any action against Daley.

A JUSTIFIED VETO

Whether in the field of public education or corrections or welfare, members of the Missouri General Assembly have insisted upon co-ordination of services, recognizing that fragmented efforts will not provide the state with a fully-effective program in the various enterprises in which it is concerned.

Interestingly, while insisting upon such performance from the executive branch, the General Assembly has displayed gross amounts of poor coordination, and in some instances virtually no coordination at all.

Bond vetoed a $4,900,000 appropriation for a state office building in midtown St. Louis. The Legislature had approved spending the taxpayers' money for a project that, despite whatever need might exist, had absolutely no plans. No site had been selected for this nearly $5,000,000 project and no building plan had been drawn.

It strains credibility, we realize, for taxpayers of this state to realize that their elected representatives could actually appropriate $4,900,000 for a project which no one, in any office in state government, has visualized sufficiently to locate or plan.

The Governor's veto, some lawmakers complained, was in retaliation for the General Assembly's refusal to grant funds to complete the Wainwright building complex in downtown St. Louis. We suspect the chief executive was not retaliating at all, but was using common sense to veto a project for which no plans had been drawn. And, yes, the Legislature had failed to appropriate sufficient funds to complete the Wainwright project, which does have both a location and plans for completion. The Legislature chose to ignore the Wainwright project, however, and voted funds for some kind of project in the midtown area of St. Louis.

We admit that this is totally illogical, but it is exactly the procedure followed by the last General Assembly.

One explanation, of course, is that the Legislature doesn't know what it's doing. Another is that the prime mover of the midtown project is none other than the Speaker of the House, Representative Richard J. Rabbitt, a resident of the midtown area. And it just so happens that Speaker Rabbit is running for lieutenant governor next year and would like a little credit for his efforts to improve the midtown area of St. Louis.

Whatever the political reason, the practical course is to complete one project and then develop plans for the next one. The exact opposite course was taken by the Legislature, which insists upon co-ordination from others but demands it not from its own members.—The Daily Dunklin Democrat, Kennett, Mo.

PROTECTING CONSUMERS FROM SHOPLIFTING

Nevada enjoys the benefits of one of the most effective consumer protection measures of any state in the Union--a new "get-tough" shoplifting law. The law is reinforced by a statewide education program, cosponsored by the Nevada Retail Association and the State Attorney General's Office. The new law provides that shoplifters pay all legal fees as well as civil fines of anywhere between $100 and $250 to the merchant who files a complaint. Parents of minors found guilty of shoplifting must assume payment of all fees and fines.

These stern penalties are Nevada's way of recognizing that shoplifting is a major crime, not only against merchants, but against consumers. By placing the burden of costs on the guilty, legal action against shoplifters is encouraged. Heretofore, small merchants were reluctant to prosecute suspected shoplifters because time spent testifying in court is costly and expectations for recovery were minimal. The manager of a local J.C. Penney store in Nevada comments, "The new law gives the smaller merchants an incentive to cooperate with the courts because they now have every opportunity to recover court costs and damages." The educational campaign which has been mounted in conjunction with imposition of Nevada's shoplifting law is far-ranging and aimed at young people. It includes radio, television, newspaper and billboard advertising, plus distribution of pamphlets to schools and posters to stores. The campaign slogan, "Shoplifting In Nevada Is A Handful of Trouble--Don't Risk It," is featured in store display ads and on shopping bags.

Shoplifting costs consumers hundreds of millions of dollars every year as one of the costs of merchandising that must be passed on to customers. The movement that has started in Nevada to curb shoplifting is a consumer protection effort of the first order.

ENTHUSIASM MAKES A DIFFERENCE

When an energetic group like the Boys' Clubs of America rolls up its sleeves and digs into community improvement programs, the area is bound to take on a new sheen.

That is just what happened after the Eastern Branch of the Boys' Clubs of Greater Washington, D.C. initiated its award-winning service organization called "Brothers for the People." As one of 10 recipients of the annual national Honor Awards for Program Excellence, the club offered specific services for a nominal fee. This included yard work, carpentry, floor tiling, painting, plastering and cleanup. Local citizens contacted the club for aid, and no one was turned away because they could not pay for services needed.

The positive approach toward life is typical of the Boys' Clubs, whether it is engaged in community enrichment projects or the training of its one million members in some 1,000 clubs in the U.S. The main thrust of all Boys' Clubs activities is character-building, leadership and self-reliance through friendly guidance as the young people pursue their interests and skills in such areas as vocational training and athletics.

Voluntarism on a local level can work. The boys' Clubs has proven it in thousands of communities across the nation. Any "roll call" of the nation's leading citizens would reveal a substantial number of "graduates" from that 113-year-old organization--men who are proud of America, their community and the youth organization which helped teach them the rudiments of good citizenship, morals and patriotism. The Boys' Clubs of America do, to a large extent, lead the way toward realizing a brighter tomorrow for this country.

SMALL TALK CAN'T HURT

Marketing consultant George N. Kahn urges salesmen to go beyond the call of duty to build goodwill with customers: "It's admiring that stuffed marlin on his wall. It's a congratulatory note when he's passed a business milestone. It's sending him a card when he's sick. It's small talk about his golf game or bowling score.

"Some salesmen hurry in and out of a buyer's office as if it were on fire. Even if you don't get an order, don't scamper for the door. Chat with the prospect for a while. The time you spend with him may one day net you a fat commission."

USING OUR RESOURCES

It is quite apparent that if the United States is going to solve its various shortage problems, petroleum being the most celebrated one at the present time, it will have to trust the evidence of its own history. It will have to rely more, rather than less, heavily upon the unique production capabilities of the private enterprise system--the best mechanism ever devised to make people produce the things that they, as well as others, need.

Consider the matter of international trade on which the U.S. depends for an adequate supply of many scarce metals and minerals, including petroleum. If we are to buy from other countries, we have to sell to them. And the U.S. multinational corporation is one of the best devices ever developed to maintain our access to foreign markets. U.S. companies investing in production facilities in other nations often do so in order to overcome restrictions which would otherwise prevent their selling U.S.-made products in those countries. In such cases, they maintain access to a market that would otherwise be closed to them.

As the executive of a leading U.S. aerospace and industrial manufacturing concern with over 100 operations in 26 countries around the world has pointed out, "...when we make an acquisition abroad, it is done to expand foreign markets, which in return will generate more work here. Such expansion is not done to obtain cheap labor and tax breaks, but to build a broadly based worldwide business. When we contribute to the building of a healthy world economy, we are helping the United States." A Department of Commerce study has shown that if U.S. companies operating overseas were forced by tax penalties or other restrictions to withdraw from international business it could mean the loss of some 600,000 jobs in the U.S.

In learning to use our national resources wisely, and there is no alternative to this course, we must not overlook our greatest strength--the productive potential and capacity of U.S. investor-owned free enterprise. In this category, the multinational corporation has proved to be a star performer in terms of strengthening our own nation and both directly and indirectly meeting the needs of people at home, as well as in other nations around the world.

THE MISSILE EXPLAINED

—(We are now talking about fourth-generation missiles. Despite their sophistication, the method of development seems to be the same as the first, second and third generations as proved by this article, written when President Kennedy was in the White House.)

WASHINGTON — In the now famous Air Force manual, withdrawn temporarily but not forgotten, one of the paragraphs aimed at Air Force Reservists said, "The idea that Americans have a right to know what is going on is foolish."

We poor, ignorant civilian can't be blamed then if we have to resort to conjecture about what is going on with such things as our missile program, which is no longer known as a missile program, but a missile gap.

I was as confused about our missiles as anyone else until I had lunch the other day with an industrialist who explaind it to me. He asked that his name not be mentioned, and since the Air Force won't tell me their secrets I won't tell them mine.

"The trouble with most Americans,' he said, "is that they think ideas for a new missile come from the top. On the contrary, most ideas for missiles are thought up by some $10,000-a-year civilian engineer in some tiny office thousands of miles from the Pentagon.

"Let me give you an example of how a missile is born. One day a civilian engineer has to think of something new, so he writes a paper suggesting we develop an anti-antii- missile missile.

"The civilian, after developing the paper at length, turns it over to a second lieutenant, just out of ROTC, who, knowing less than anyone, immediately signs it and passes it on. The captain over him adds his signature because he also doesn't understand it and doesn't have enough reasons for rejecting it. The paper continus on up through channels with more and more signatures, each officer signing it on the assumption that the guys down below know what they're doing. This is what is known in government circles as 'management from the bottom up.'

"Finally, it goes to the Pentagon who assumes the problem, on the basis of all the signatures, has been thoroughly studied, and they take it over to the Appropriations Committeee who appropriate the money because they don't understnd it either and, therefore, can't say it won't work.

"Besides, all they need to get the missile started is $10 million and, as long as it's such a reasonable request, no one wants to argue about it.

"As soon as the money is appropriated, the public relations people put out a release announcing their branch of the service will soon have an anti-anti-missile missile that, although not the final deterrent, will be the gap-filler which everyone has been waiting for 'until we catch up with the Russians.'

"The program is under way now and in no time at all the appropriations are used up. Nothing has come of the missile, but this is an advantage, not a disadvantage. The people in charge believe it is really an advanced idea, otherwise it would be working already. The reason it couldn't be done, according to the people in charge, is that there wasn't enough money. So appropriations are increased to $75 million, and, whereas only a few hundred men were connected with the original work, thousands are now added on the theory that if you put enough people on a project long enough they will get the job done. This is known as 'snowing the job with manpower.'

"The only thing that has been working so far has been the mimeograph machines in the public relations department, and they have promised the American people an anti-anti-missile missile come hell or high water. When the $75 million is used up, it's no problem to get more money for the project because as long as you keep asking for more money in the Defense Department, no one is going to ask you what you did with the other money. But as soon as you stop asking for money, you're admitting the project is no good. No one has the courage to stop the project after so much money has been expended.

"Finally, the time comes when you have to t est-fire your missile. It doesn't go off. But even this is not a defeat as far as the service goes. After the failure, a general is on tap to explain that it's really a good thing to have failures because they represent progresss. If it worked, it would not be an advanced missile but an obsolete one. Anything that works in missiles in obsolete.

"Therefore, the general explains, the Russians, although they seem ahead in the missile race, are really behind because their missiles work better than ours. Anyone knows a really advanced missile is one on paper that can't get off the ground.

"In the meantime, the engineer who thought up the idea has corrected his original figures. But it's too late. Who is going to listen to a $10,000-a-year civilian engineer when $200 million has been poured into a project?"

WASHINGTON — When I slipped out of fire - scarred Portugal, the shrill voice of the perpetually screeching devout left-wing Congresswoman Bella Abzug shouting at CIA director William Colby about covert operations welled back in my ears to compete with the unfamiliar roar of a small propeller plane. I wondered why the embattled axe-swinging Congressperson from Manhattan appeared so unconcerned some weeks ago over Soviet KGB cover operations in a sun-blessed land of gentle people.

She, and others like her who appear to have so much difficulty faulting leftists on so many issues, might like to know that I learned from British intelligence sources in London that American estimates of Soviet subsidy of underground Communist Portuguese operatives totalling some $180 million to $200 million since April 1974 are low.

These millions have gone into the creation of an underground apparatus matched in recent decades only by the old Stalinist Luigi Longo 60,000- man secret Red army which dominated northern Italy until recently. It was dismantled only when its successful political fronts made the army unnecessary. This force had everything from automatic rifles to artillery.

There also were ItalianCommunist killers squads trained by the Soviet secret police in Longo's old "Triangle of Death" in the Bologna-Modena area.

In the past year Portugal has been the site of a similar Soviet invvasion. It's generally forgotten that Communist party general secretary Alvaro Cunhal had been absent from Portugal for so long he actually is a foreign Soviet agent.

He isn't his own master. He answers to the tiny inner cadre of KGB agents hidden deep inthe Soviet "embassy" in Lisbon. It is they who have directed the paymaster operation. And they almost got their money's worth -- a whole nation.

There has been, for example, endless reportage of anti-Communist rioting and the bonfiring of Communist party headquarters – at least 35 of them.

Actually, I'm told, there are over 350 Communist buildings -- all the way from the multistoried stronghold of the 'labor" Intersindical office building in Lisbon to the one in nearby lovely Sintra to farm communities north of Oporto to the Azores. Where did an allegedly feledgling revolutionary party get the millions necessary for such a vast network? For the most part, the official Communists had cash coming in Swiss, German and sometimes American currency totaling $10 to $12 million couriered monthly into Portugal by KGB agents and official Soviet pouches.

This money paid for presses, new broadcasting equipment, loudspeaker trucks, huge bundles of books, pamphlets, reproducing machinery, communications equipment, banners, posters and well paid full time staffs numbering tens of thousands in 50 or more cities and rural communities.

More important, hundreds of Italian and French thugs were infiltrated along with their political commissars and specialists to take over banks, factories and commercial ventures.

One of the first delegations rushed in by the Soviet "embassy" came from East Germany. The Communist German labor organizers swung the "union federation," the Intersindical, into action. Through it they attempted to take over the post-revolutionary unions which had sprung up spontaneously. However they couldn't touch the postal and telcommunications, some transport and construction workers. Or the farmers.

But the KGB had the money to buy "trade union leaders." That is they simply paid off. Just as they did cadres in the Armed Forces Movement Revolutionary Council and the Navy. In Geneva I learned that money was flowing into numbered Swiss bank accounts from Portugal, where the mercenaries didn't trust the Communists and believed that the opposition of the centrists, the Social Democrats and the Church would crush the Soviets' military government.

Meanwhile, all this has been costly to the Portuguese banking system and the big American, British and German corporations which had been operating and providing jobs in Portugal for years.

Inside the factories, handfuls of Communist agents, directly paid by the party, set up workers' councils, workers' commissions, workers' management boards, workers' production standards and workers' disciplinary courts.

On the agricultural front special farmers' leagues were launched,first in the south, then slowly moved north -- where the real farmers' associations met them head on.

KGB - directed strong-arm squads took over non- Communist city councils such as in the tourist paradise Sintra -- only to be tackled by the construction workers.

The terror, the muscle, the brutality has been paid for -- cash on the bloody head -- by the operatives of what we used to call the "comintern rep." There was a democratic counterattack. But the fight came from the Socialist leaders, Britain's Harold Wilson, Germany's Helmut Schmidt and even Sweden's Prime Minister Olof Palme. To the shame of capitalist America, we permitted some loudmouths to bog down our efforts by enmeshing in futile rhetoric the men who could have helped. And thus America lost face again abroad among those who found their freedom under siege.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: NATO Betrayed?
with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Intelligence reports claim that a Cuban military delegation has been pumping Portuguese officer in Lisbon for NATO secrets. The Cubans were particularly curious, according to the reports, about U.S. naval maneuvers in the Caribbean.

This confirms the worst fears of the other NATO partners, who have been worried about NATO security ever since the communist-leaning junta took over Portugal.

As a NATO member, Portugal has had access to NATO codes and classified documents. Lisbon has also been kept informed on NATO policies, strategies and tactics.

Since the communist sympathizers have come to power in Portugal, NATO codes have been changed, and Lisbon has been cut off from the flow of sensitive information. But a trickle of data still reaches Portugal from its NATO conferees.

In an earlier column, we reported the arrival in Lisbon of a high-powered Cuban delegation, which included Army commanders Senen Casas Regueiro and Fernando Vecino Alegret and Navy Captain Emigdio Baez.

Their surprise appearance as passed off by Lisbon as a ceremonial visit. But our intelligence sources are convinced that the Cubans received secret briefings on NATO and other military matters.

Coutinho has been dubbed "the Red Admiral" by Portuguese settlers in Angola. As governor of th colony, Coutinho encouraged the pro-Moscow faction and helped them get Soviet arms through Luanda and Lobito. This enflamed the three-cornered war in Angola and forced the settlers to flee for their lives to Portugal.

It is understood that the Portuguese military leaders cooperated, but there is no firm intelligence on what secrets were compromised.

Footnote: On August 17, according to our intelligence sources, the "Red Admiral" visited Cuba at the invitation of Cuban Defense Minister Raul Castro. The admiral was greeted by some of the same Cubans he met at the center in Portugal.

ANOTHER COVERUP: The General Services Administration, according to reliable inside sources, has withheld key documents from FBI investigators.

The FBI has until the end of the year to crack a $50 million building scandal in Philadelphia, involving close associates of Senate Minority Leader Hugh Scott, R-Pa.

Thereafter, the statutory deadline runs out, and the culprits will escape the legal consequences.

The FBI, following up on a civil suit which was settled out of court for a reported $1.5 million, is investigating the government's use of the Gateway Building in Philadelphia. Here are the details:

Uncle Sam, seeking office space at a Philadelphia location, advertised for bids. Curiously, GSA selected Gateway, the highest bidder, to receive the contract. At the time of the award, the Gateway building didn't even exist; the site was a vacant lot.

The contract called for annual rents of about $2.6 million for at least 20 years. This would add up to more than $50 million. The government probably could have built its own building for about one-third of that cost.

Not surprisingly, there were charges of favoritism and irregularities from competing developers. The civil case, before it was settled out of court, turned up numerous allegations of fraud and corruption.

The damaging evidence assembled as part of the suit has been impounded by the court. And no one, least of all GSA, seems anxious to help put together a strong case before the statute of limitations runs out.

Our sources have knowledge that important documents have been withheld from the FBI, apparently, to cover up the role of Robert Kunzig, the former Administrator, and Art Sampson, the present Administrator.

Footnote: Scott has consistently denied having played any part in the contract award. The Justice Department confirmed that the statute of limitations would run out at the end of the year but claimed that GSA had cooperated with the FBI. Our sources have information to the contrary. A spokeswoman for GSA declined to comment.

POSTSCRIPT FROM CHICAGO: In an earlier column, we reported that ex-President Nixon spoke up in defense of Chicago's Mayor Richard Daley in 1970 after ex-Attorney General John Mitchell had threatened to cut the mayor "to shreds."

Those present during the conversation went away with the impression that the Justice Department, as a result, might havve been more lenient with Daley.

We attempted to reach former U.S. Atrtorney James Thompson to ask whether the Justice Department had ever tried to influence his investigation of Daley. We have now located Thompson who told us emphatically that he received absolutely no instructions on Daley from the Justice Department.

Although he had not assigned a "hit squad" to go after Daley, said Thompson, he had investigated all reports of wrongdoing by the mayor and had submitted information to a grand jury. But it was insufficient, said Thompson, to justify any action against Daley.

A different view of independence

By RICK MOREIN

People of often wonder whatever happened to "the American way?" For those who don't know, "the American way" is a phrase which refers to our particular set of American traditions and examples. Have you ever heard, "Those who work hard succeed?" This saying is part of the Horatio Alger tradition: Everyone has an equal chance at success in America.

Lately, though, many believe that Americans have prostituted their ideals. If this is true, what circumstances would the average citizen find himself in? Would he be enjoying himself less? Would he be working harder to take home less money? I, for one, really don't think so.

As Americans, we expect to live better tomorrow than we do today, and the problems arise when the living exceeds all reason. We Have to Have, don't we? Does Guy A really have to have more material possessions than Guy B in order to prove to himself that he is "more successful?" Herelin lies the problem.

We, as Americans, oftentimes are not very cognizant of world problems. When problems of catastrophic proportions arise in Bolivia, we thank our stars that we don't have those problems in Sikeston, Mo. But we do, you see.

Whether we like it or not, the world is getting smaller and smaller. The United States is not an independent nation, but part of a real world composed of nations with their own real problems which are almost always interdependent.

So, by the previous example, a coffee crisis in Bolivia will almost certainly produce one in America. Okay, you ask, how will that affect me? The answer is really simple -- higher coffee prices,right? Not necessarily. More immediate problems arise when U.S. workers at a plant which exports nearly 100 per cent of its product to Bolivia find themselves in a bind because Bolivian workers can no longer afford to buy their product. Then we have real problems. Unemployed workers.

And this is the pattern of world problems + a constant recycling of political, socio-economic dilemmas. We can expect to experience repercussions when a country we don't even trade with has its own problems.

We can no longer afford to thank independence. We have to think interdependence. That means that what goes on anywhere in this world of ours has a real, measurable effect on the people who live in Sikeston, Mo.

And with the amount and proportions of world problems on the increase daily, maybe we should stop and think.

The world -- it's where we live.

Dog days dulldrums almost over

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The silly season is upon us once again, with touches of midsummer madness dotting the country. A roller coaster record, a car-touching contest and a wedding in a bird cage at the zoo.

Congress is in recess. School hasn't begun. And the minor pranks of young and old have taken the spotlight in the midst of the summer doldrums.

In New Bern, N.C., 31 persons vied in a car-touching contest sponsored by a radio station. Laverne Adams of Washington, N.C., 30, outlasted everyone else to win a 1975 car after 84 hours and 18 minutes of touching. Rules called for entrants to touch the car with the fiat of the hand, continuously with 10-minute hourly breaks. They could not change hands or lean against the car.

Some of the pranks were blamed on — or prompted by — the heat. A pretty girl fried an egg on the sidewalk at New York's Times Square as part of a publicity stunt and there were similar reports from other parts of the country as temperatures soared into the 90s.

Chicago-area residents contributed to summertime fun with an underwater scavenger hunt. The search was part of the Chicago Lakefront Festival and among the trophies were underwear, wine bottles, manhole covers and an unbroken china plate.

Michael Boodley of Trenton, N.J., made the headlines with a roller coaster record, riding his way into the Guiness Book of Records with 1,000 trips on the Coney Island Cyclone.

Then there was that feathery wedding. Ginny Robinson and Serge Genitempo of Los Angeles were looking for someplace unusual for their marriage ceremony. The solution: the flight cage of the aviary section of the Los Angeles Zoo. "I thought it was really great," said Ginny, 21. "The cage is like a chapel."

Marston Day planned Sunday

MARSTON--Sunday has been designated Marston Day by city officials, The Civic Improvement Club, The Marston Lions Club and the Marston Senior Citizens.

The day has been marked solely for the purpose of encouraging former residents to return to the town during the Labor Day weekend to renew friendships with long-time residents, get acquainted with new residents and to meet other former residents who will be returning for the affair.

Promoters of the occasion state that no spectacular activities are planned for the day, although a small pep band of Marston students, both past and present, has been organized.

"We just want to visit and remember bygone years and friends of several generations", announced members of the sponsoring groups.

Tents will be erected on the school grounds and tables and chairs will be set up for the convenience of family gatherings and visitors.

Marstonians are going to provide a noon meal from the school kitchen, or persons may bring their own family picnic baskets.

A different view of independence

By RICK MOREIN

People of often wonder whatever happened to "the American way?" For those who don't know, "the American way" is a phrase which refers to our particular set of American traditions and examples. Have you ever heard, "Those who work hard succeed?" This saying is part of the Horatio Alger tradition: Everyone has an equal chance at success in America.

Lately, though, many believe that Americans have prostituted their ideals. If this is true, what circumstances would the average citizen find himself in? Would he be enjoying himself less? Would he be working harder to take home less money? I, for one, really don't think so.

As Americans, we expect to live better tomorrow than we do today, and the problems arise when the living exceeds all reason. We Have to Have, don't we? Does Guy A really have to have more material possessions than Guy B in order to prove to himself that he is "more successful?" Herelin lies the problem.

We, as Americans, oftentimes are not very cognizant of world problems. When problems of catastrophic proportions arise in Bolivia, we thank our stars that we don't have those problems in Sikeston, Mo. But we do, you see.

Whether we like it or not, the world is getting smaller and smaller. The United States is not an independent nation, but part of a real world composed of nations with their own real problems which are almost always interdependent.

So, by the previous example, a coffee crisis in Bolivia will almost certainly produce one in America. Okay, you ask, how will that affect me? The answer is really simple -- higher coffee prices,right? Not necessarily. More immediate problems arise when U.S. workers at a plant which exports nearly 100 per cent of its product to Bolivia find themselves in a bind because Bolivian workers can no longer afford to buy their product. Then we have real problems. Unemployed workers.

And this is the pattern of world problems -- a constant recycling of political, socio-economic dilemmas. We can expect to experience repercussions when a country we don't even trade with has its own problems.

We can no longer afford to thank independence. We have to think interdependence. That means that what goes on anywhere in this world of ours has a real, measurable effect on the people who live in Sikeston, Mo.

And with the amount and proportions of world problems on the increase daily, maybe we should stop and think.

The world -- it's where we live.

Marston Day planned Sunday

MARSTON--Sunday has been designated Marston Day by city officials, The Civic Improvement Club, The Marston Lions Club and the Marston Senior Citizens.

The day has been marked solely for the purpose of encouraging former residents to return to the town during the Labor Day weekend to renew friendships with long-time residents, get acquainted with new residents and to meet other former residents who will be returning for the affair.

Promoters of the occasion state that no spectacular activities are planned for the day, although a small pep band of Marston students, both past and present, has been organized.

"We just want to visit and remember bygone years and friends of several generations", announced members of the sponsoring groups.

Tents will be erected on the school grounds and tables and chairs will be set up for the convenience of family gatherings and visitors.

Marstonians are going to provide a noon meal from the school kitchen, or persons may bring their own family picnic baskets.

Dog days dulldrums almost over

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The silly season is upon us once again, with touches of midsummer madness dotting the country. A roller coaster record, a car-touching contest and a wedding in a bird cage at the zoo.

Congress is in recess. School hasn't begun. And the minor pranks of young and old have taken the spotlight in the midst of the summer doldrums.

In New Bern, N.C., 31 persons vied in a car-touching contest sponsored by a radio station. Laverne Adams of Washington, N.C., 30, outlasted everyone else to win a 1975 car after 84 hours and 18 minutes of touching. Rules called for entrants to touch the car with the fiat of the hand, continuously with 10-minute hourly breaks. They could not change hands or lean against the car.

Some of the pranks were blamed on — or prompted by — the heat. A pretty girl fried an egg on the sidewalk at New York's Times Square as part of a publicity stunt and there were similar reports from other parts of the country as temperatures soared into the 90s.

Chicago-area residents contributed to summertime fun with an underwater scavenger hunt. The search was part of the Chicago Lakefront Festival and among the trophies were underwear, wine bottles, manhole covers and an unbroken china plate.

Michael Boodley of Trenton, N.J., made the headlines with a roller coaster record, riding his way into the Guiness Book of Records with 1,000 trips on the Coney Island Cyclone.

Then there was that feathery wedding. Ginny Robinson and Serge Genitempo of Los Angeles were looking for someplace unusual for their marriage ceremony. The solution: the flight cage of the aviary section of the Los Angeles Zoo. "I thought it was really great," said Ginny, 21. "The cage is like a chapel."

Dear Mr. Blanton:

Regarding the letter published in the August 21st Standard written by a lady from Houston, Texas referring to your supplement "Scope," edited by Robert Vaughan, I have something to add to the subject.

Truthfully I am writing for one who cannot. He would like to give further praise of Mr. Vaughan's venture. The one I write for pours constantly over page after page each day.

I write then for my pet canary, Skipper. The poor bird will no longer accept any newspaper in his cage but, a copy of "Scope!"

Community works together for city museum

By NADINE TOWNSEND

NEW MADRID — A monumental task of transforming a 68-year-old former garage building, which bore the scars of time and usage, into a beautifully designed city historical museum building, is soon to be realized by the Chamber of Commerce and the Community Betterment Committee.

Finishing touches were completed Wednesday to the exterior of the brick building -- located next to the levee at the south end of Main Street -- when white columns were installed at the entrance.

Only a few minor details remain to be completed inside to conclude a major renovation project that was initiated in June 1974.

Repair and renovation costs, excluding the price of the building, have amounted to $12,106.23. In addition, donations valued at $3,020 consisting of concrete, lighting fixtures and various other materials were made to the project.

The building was bought by the Chamber of Commerce, which now occupies office facilities in it.

The project has been financed largely through donations and fund-raising projects by the Community Betterment Committee, including public dances, a children's day show, beef raffle and a Christmas memory tree.

Aside from the community's financial support, perhaps the greatest contributions have been the spirit and cooperation extended by many volunteers who donated countless hours of labor at all stages of the project.

Mrs. Dot Halstead, executive secretary of the Chamber of Commerce and vice chairman of the Community Betterment Committee, who has been deeply involved as a member of the building committee, stated, "There is no way I can truly express our feelings about this project -- all the heartaches, happiness, setbacks, hard labor, tears, fun, laughter and friendships made. There is a complete feeling of accomplishment in this tremendous undertaking.

"New Madrid has and will have for years to come a historical museum through the efforts of a large group working for community betterment," she added.

Completion of the building only ends the first phase in the museum development. Already, action is under way to secure historical items, either on loan or by donation, to be placed in the museum.

Among items that have been pledged are an early period saloon back-bar, Indian artifacts, antique clothing, furniture and other historical memorabilia.

Arrangements may be made for placing items in the museum by contacting Mrs. Kathleen Bock.

On Sept. 20 and 21, a formal opening of the Chamber of Commerce office and an open house are scheduled to offer the public an opportunity to view the museum building.

An added attraction for the event will be an arts and crafts show featuring works by Bootheel exhibitors. The New Madrid Bicentennial Commission is sponsoring the show as a Bicentennial project.

The museum building will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Sept. 20 and from 1 to 5 p.m. on Sept. 21.

The football team at Rochester, N.Y., is known as the Yellow Jackets.

Salad has interesting mingling

Shouldn't you know how to pick a perfect cantaloupe and when it is at its best to serve? The United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association is ready with some expert advice. First of all, do not expect to find ready-to-eat cantaloupes at the store. If they have been shipped a long way, as most are, they must be picked while firm. Yet at full slip they have developed their full sugar content and need only to soften. This process may take three or four days at room temperature. Remember that and try to buy your cantaloupes ahead of when you'll be serving them, or keep some constantly on hand at different stages of ripening.

Disappointment with cantaloupes is usually owing to eating them too soon. Give them time to take on a yellow appearance and acquire their distinctive aroma. Everyone knows how good that is and recognizes it, a real fruity smell. When your cantaloupes are ripe, refrigerate them if they are not to be eaten immediately.

An unusual and delightful way to serve cantaloupes is mixed with ham in a salad. It's an idea that comes from Italy where melon and prosciutto is one of the most famous of all first courses. You may serve the salad two ways, using our recipes, mixed in melon bowls with cubes of ham in a delicious dressing, or served in slices with rolls of sliced ham, and dressing offered separately. Both are very delicious main dish salads for summer.

Few people realize how nourishing cantaloupes are. A half cantaloupe five inches in diameter provides more than the daily recommended allowance of Vitamin A for an adult and 100 per cent of the recommended Vitamin C.

TWO-WAY HAM AND CANTALOUPE SALADS

Herb-Lemon Dressing:

½ cup mayonnaise
½ cup sour cream
¼ cup chopped parsley
1 Tbsp. chopped chives
1 Tbsp. fresh lemon juice
½ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper

In small bowl mix all ingredients.

Salad Platter:

1 cantaloupe
1 pound sliced cooked ham
Watercress

Cut cantaloupe in half, remove seeds and cut into thin wedges; cut off peel. Roll ham slices. For each serving, alternate cantaloupe wedges and ham rolls on salad plate. Garnish with watercress and serve with herb-lemon dressing. Makes: 4 servings.

Mixed Salad:

1 cantaloupe
2 cups cubed cooked ham
1 cup chopped celery
Salad greens

Cut cantaloupe in half and remove seeds. With a melon ball cutter or round measuring spoon, cut into balls. In large bowl combine cantaloupe balls, ham and celery. Add herb-lemon dressing and mix well. Cover and chill until ready to serve. To serve, turn onto platter lined with salad greens. Makes: 4 servings.

Baby boom may be coming

WASHINGTON (AP) - A new baby boom may be coming.

"In sum, our evidence suggests that the American birth rate may have bottomed out and that the country is likely to see a rise in reproduction," a pair of population experts say.

If it occurs, the boom will come from women who decided in the 1960s to postpone having their children, a decision which pushed the U.S. birth rate to its lowest level.

The two California demographers, social statisticians, say the women who are now their 20s and 30s still intend to have children and will start making up for lost time.

Biofeedback being used in childbirth

By VICTORIA GRAHAM
Associated Press Writer

Some women are wiring themselves to biofeedback machines and learning to relax their muscles, relieve their fears and reduce the time and pain of childbirth.

"I think childbirth is a perfect and down-to-earth application for biofeedback," says Dr. Robert H. Gregg. Gregg uses biofeedback in his Southern California practice and says it sometimes can change labor from a traumatic ordeal to a pleasant experience.

Biofeedback is a process in which people get constant signals, or feedback, on body functions such as blood pressure and muscle tension. They then can attempt to control those functions by concentration.

In childbirth, Gregg says, biofeedback training can help some women relax, thereby easing their labor.

Gregg is a clinical professor of obstetrics and gynecology at Loma Linda University near Los Angeles.

He reported his findings on biofeedback and childbirth to a meeting of the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists in Boston.

Biofeedback has been used to help control hypertension, migrane headaches and low back pain, but Gregg says he believes he is the first to apply it to childbirth.

In a preliminary study, Gregg compared 30 pregnant women who were trained in biofeedback with 30 similar women who received no training. In each group, 20 of the women previously had given birth.

He reported that the biofeedback-trained women had a significantly shorter, smoother labor and used fewer pain killers and tranquilizers than women without training.

Girl is only one who can save herself

Dear Ann Landers: We are having terrible problems with our 16-year-old daughter. She respects your judgment and might listen to you. Here's the situation:

Within the last six months we received several phone calls. Here are some examples.

From the school principal: "Please come and get your daughter. She has been drinking and I have her here in my office."

From the mother of a boy in her class: "I found some filthy notes to my son written by your daughter. It is obvious that they have been having sexual relations. I thought you ought to know so you can speak to her."

From a department store manager: "Your daughter has been picked up for shoplifting. Please come down and let's have a talk. I don't want to call the police."

Each time we did a great deal of talking and there were promises to "do better." We feel the girl should have counseling but she is against the idea. She says nobody can tell her anything she doesn't already know.

I just can't see sitting around waiting for another phone call. It would probably be the police. Please advise us. -- Mom

Dear Mom: You say your daughter might listen to me. I hope so. The following remarks are for her.

Dear Friend: Each of the three incidents cited by your mother are symptoms of deeper problems. There are specific reasons for the behavior that resulted in those phone calls.

Although you are against counseling on grounds that nobody can tell you anything you don't already know, please trust me when I say you need to TALK to somebody -- not just listen.

I urge you at least to give counseling a try. You're on a collision course of self-destruction and only you can save yourself.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 11 years old and I read your column all the time. I notice you print letters from people who aren't asking for advice -- they just want to tell you how they feel about something. So here is another one of those letters. Like I said, it's not really a problem but I hate it.

When you watch TV, all of a sudden you see a commercial that says if you put a certain kind of baby powder on a baby's behind he will love you. Then, a few minutes later another commercial says if you add a certain something to the gravy your husband will love you. The worst one is that commercial for chicken soup: "If you buy brand X your children will love you."

Why doesn't somebody tell the fools who write those things that there's m ore to love than talcum, powder, gravy and chicken soup? Sign me -- Had My Say

Dear Had: I guess a great many TV commercials are geared to the mentality of eight-year - olds because you, at 11, aren't going for it.

Thanks for writing. I hope somebody on Madison Avenue takes the hint.

It's not always easy to recognize love, especially the first time around. Acquaint yourself with the guidelines. Read Ann Landers's booklet, "Love or Sex and How To Tell the Difference." Use plastic infant seats only in playpens or on the floor. Never use after baby learns to stand.

Lash crib sides if there is any danger older children might drop them so baby can fall out.

If your child can stand, don't leave him with large toys in his crib or playpen. These toys can be used as stepping stones to disastrous falls.

Salad has interesting mingling

Shouldn't you know how to pick a perfect cantaloupe and when it is at its best to serve? The United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association is ready with some expert advice. First of all, do not expect to find ready-to-eat cantaloupes at the store. If they have been shipped a long way, as most are, they must be picked while firm. Yet at full slip they have developed their full sugar content and need only to soften. This process may take three or four days at room temperature. Remember that and try to buy your cantaloupes ahead of when you'll be serving them, or keep some constantly on hand at different stages of ripening.

Disappointment with cantaloupes is usually owing to eating them too soon. Give them time to take on a yellow appearance and acquire their distinctive aroma. Everyone knows how good that is and recognizes it, a real fruity smell. When your cantaloupes are ripe, refrigerate them if they are not to be eaten immediately.

An unusual and delightful way to serve cantaloupes is mixed with ham in a salad. It's an idea that comes from Italy where melon and prosciutto is one of the most famous of all first courses. You may serve the salad two ways, using our recipes, mixed in melon bowls with cubes of ham in a delicious dressing, or served in slices with rolls of sliced ham, and dressing offered separately. Both are very delicious main dish salads for summer.

Few people realize how nourishing cantaloupes are. A half cantaloupe five inches in diameter provides more than the daily recommended allowance of Vitamin A for an adult and 100 per cent of the recommended Vitamin C.

TWO-WAY HAM AND CANTALOUPE SALADS

Herb-Lemon Dressing:

½ cup mayonnaise
½ cup sour cream
¼ cup chopped parsley
1 Tbsp. chopped chives
1 Tbsp. fresh lemon juice
½ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper

In small bowl mix all ingredients.

Salad Platter:

1 cantaloupe
1 pound sliced cooked ham
Watercress

Cut cantaloupe in half, remove seeds and cut into thin wedges; cut off peel. Roll ham slices. For each serving, alternate cantaloupe wedges and ham rolls on salad plate. Garnish with watercress and serve with herb-lemon dressing. Makes: 4 servings.

Mixed Salad:

1 cantaloupe
2 cups cubed cooked ham
1 cup chopped celery
Salad greens

Cut cantaloupe in half and remove seeds. With a melon ball cutter or round measuring spoon, cut into balls. In large bowl combine cantaloupe balls, ham and celery. Add herb-lemon dressing and mix well. Cover and chill until ready to serve. To serve, turn onto platter lined with salad greens. Makes: 4 servings.

Industries warned:

Expect natural gas curtailments

BLYTHEVILLE, Ark. — Representatives of 13 of the area's largest industries were warned in a meeting here Friday to expect severe natural gas curtailments this winter.

After Nov. 1, there will be no natural gas for the large industries in the area served by Texas Eastern Transmission Corp. and Texas Gas Transmission Corp. "until winter weather determines what may be available in the supply year endng Aug. 31, 1976," according to John H. Germain.

Germain is vice president in charge of gas operations for Arkansas- Missouri Power Co. and its subsidiary, Associated Natural Gas Co.

In addition to the industrial representatives, the meeting was attended by John R. Gregory, director of sales and industrial development for Texas Gas Transmission Corp.; Col. Ed Davis, chiefs of staff of the Arkansas Public Service Commission; and Nick Ruffin, director of the newly formed Energy Office for Aark-Mo and Associated are imposing the industrial curtailments, Germain said, "because we estimate that our pipeline suppliers are going to curtail us 4.78 billion cubic feet below our contract entitlements."

The Ark-Mo vice president said that while service to residential and small commercial customers is not in jeopardy, they should consider "serious conservation" to make more gas available to industrial users.

For some years the area's big industries have been given "basic annual entitlements" (BAE) of natural gas. Effective Sept. 1, Germain said, each of the industries "may use up to 17 per cent of his BAE.

"Effective Nov. 1, all Priority 2 users will be curtailed 100 per cent, whether the 17 per cent has been used or not.

"As soon as possible, the 17 per cent entitlement will be reinstated for the benefit of any one of the group who has not already used it.

"Further increases above the 17 per cent figure for the benefit of the entire group will be made as soon as the company can be sure that gas will be available."

There was bad news for other interruptible customers.

All Priority 1 users, which includes municipal power plants, were told that, 'practically speaking, there is no chance at all that any gas will be available."

Priority 3 users , which includes smaller industrial and commercial interruptible customers, were told that while they could expect their full basic annual entitlement, "daily curtailments during this winter will be much greater .. probably twice as great as last year. If the winter is severe, your supply for the spring and summer of 1976 will be in jeopardy."

Priority 3 customers include cotton gins and alfalfa and soybean driers. In letters to those customers, Germain said they should be prepared to fire their operations with alternate fuels, especially during the first half of November.

"If we assume the same weather pattern as last year," he wrote, "you would be curtailed continuously from some time on the 11th (of November)until 8 a.m. on the 16th.

"We fully realize that damage to crops may result, but there is nothing we can do to get m ore gas and we must curtail. Therefore, we urge once again that any customer who is not prepared to fire an alternate fuel should make the necessary preparations without delay."

In letters to Priority 4, "human needs" users such as schools and hospitals, Germain said they should expect "far more" curtailments than last winter and urged conservation because, "it becomes increasingly important that we try to protect the available supply to our industrial users because the economic well-being of the area may be at stake."

Picking up that theme at Friday's meeting, Germain said Ark-Mo and Associated are planning to launch an extensive conservation program aimed at making more of the existing natural gas available to the industries.

"It is true that service to residential and small commercial users is not in jeopardy," he said, "but everyone has a stake in our large factories being able to continue operations this winter.

Germain said the supply of natural gas to Ark-Mo and Associated has steadily decline from the 13.4 billion cubic feet for which it has contracts.

Industries warned:

Expect natural gas curtailments

BLYTHEVILLE, Ark. — Representatives of 13 of the area's largest industries were warned in a meeting here Friday to expect severe natural gas curtailments this winter.

After Nov. 1, there will be no natural gas for the large industries in the area served by Texas Eastern Transmission Corp. and Texas Gas Transmission Corp. "until winter weather determines what may be available in the supply year endng Aug. 31, 1976," according to John H. Germain.

Germain is vice president in charge of gas operations for Arkansas- Missouri Power Co. and its subsidiary, Associated Natural Gas Co.

In addition to the industrial representatives, the meeting was attended by John R. Gregory, director of sales and industrial development for Texas Gas Transmission Corp.; Col. Ed Davis, chiefs of staff of the Arkansas Public Service Commission; and Nick Ruffin, director of the newly formed Energy Office for Aark-Mo and Associated are imposing the industrial curtailments, Germain said, "because we estimate that our pipeline suppliers are going to curtail us 4.78 billion cubic feet below our contract entitlements."

The Ark-Mo vice president said that while service to residential and small commercial customers is not in jeopardy, they should consider "serious conservation" to make more gas available to industrial users.

For some years the area's big industries have been given "basic annual entitlements" (BAE) of natural gas. Effective Sept. 1, Germain said, each of the industries "may use up to 17 per cent of his BAE.

"Effective Nov. 1, all Priority 2 users will be curtailed 100 per cent, whether the 17 per cent has been used or not.

"As soon as possible, the 17 per cent entitlement will be reinstated for the benefit of any one of the group who has not already used it.

"Further increases above the 17 per cent figure for the benefit of the entire group will be made as soon as the company can be sure that gas will be available."

There was bad news for other interruptible customers.

All Priority 1 users, which includes municipal power plants, were told that, 'practically speaking, there is no chance at all that any gas will be available."

Priority 3 users , which includes smaller industrial and commercial interruptible customers, were told that while they could expect their full basic annual entitlement, "daily curtailments during this winter will be much greater .. probably twice as great as last year. If the winter is severe, your supply for the spring and summer of 1976 will be in jeopardy."

Priority 3 customers include cotton gins and alfalfa and soybean driers. In letters to those customers, Germain said they should be prepared to fire their operations with alternate fuels, especially during the first half of November.

"If we assume the same weather pattern as last year," he wrote, "you would be curtailed continuously from some time on the 11th (of November)until 8 a.m. on the 16th.

"We fully realize that damage to crops may result, but there is nothing we can do to get m ore gas and we must curtail. Therefore, we urge once again that any customer who is not prepared to fire an alternate fuel should make the necessary preparations without delay."

In letters to Priority 4, "human needs" users such as schools and hospitals, Germain said they should expect "far more" curtailments than last winter and urged conservation because, "it becomes increasingly important that we try to protect the available supply to our industrial users because the economic well-being of the area may be at stake."

Picking up that theme at Friday's meeting, Germain said Ark-Mo and Associated are planning to launch an extensive conservation program aimed at making more of the existing natural gas available to the industries.

"It is true that service to residential and small commercial users is not in jeopardy," he said, "but everyone has a stake in our large factories being able to continue operations this winter.

Germain said the supply of natural gas to Ark-Mo and Associated has steadily decline from the 13.4 billion cubic feet for which it has contracts.

VOTE FOR CHARLEY NEAL
FOR A FULL TIME MAYOR

Morehouse, Mo.
Special Election Sept. 2, 1975

I will look into and support the projects listed below:

I. New Water Plant-By getting a grant and not using the Revenue Sharing Money.
II. Drainage for all of the town.
III. New Police Station-By getting help from the State and Federal Government.
IV. City to maintain the black top streets.
V. To let the citizens know what is being done with the Revenue Sharing Money.
VI. To lower trash pickup fee from $2.50 per month to $2.00 or to revise the system and charge so much per bag.

With 3½ million dollars going out to the Eastern Half of the State of Mo. in the first half of 1975. I believe we would have been eligible for some of it, on water drainage or housing or sewage, but they will not give it unless you ask.

Your vote will be appreciated

SeMo will ask for funds increase

CAPE GIRARDEAU--Southeast Missouri State University's Board of Regents has been advised that the university will ask for an appropriation of $11,879,766 for the next fiscal year, an increase of more than 28 per cent over the current year.

Dr. Robert E. Leestamper, president of Southeast Missouri State since July 1, told the regents that the increase is dictated by the formula of the Missouri Coordinating Board for Higher Education. The formula directs Missouri's institutions of higher education to calculate their instructional costs in a certain way, then allows a percentage of that cost for institutional support.

The Southeast Missouri State president acknowledged that he does not expect the legislature and the governor to approve the entire 28 per cent increase. He also noted there is a conflict between the formula of the CBHE and the guidelines of the state budget office.

The budget office guidelines, if followed by Southeast Missouri State, would allow a 7-8 per cent increase in the university's appropriation for the next fiscal year, it was noted.

Besides operating funds, Southeast Missouri State likely will also seek almost $2 million for capital improvements for fiscal 1977. The regents were given a list of possible capital improvement projects and were asked to review it and bring questions to the next meeting.

Major items on the list were $600,000 for additions to Serena Industrial Arts Building, $415,000 for construction of a general services building which would serve as a central receiving and storage facility, $205,500 for a campus centralized climate control system and $160,000 for continued construction of a campus underground electrical primary distribution system.

The regents were told that Southeast Missouri State's enrollment will probably be up by about 200 this fall, and they learned that the university's residence halls are overflowing and some male students will be housed temporarily in motel rooms when school starts on Aug. 25. The rooms vacated by the men will be assigned to women, according to Shelton "Butch" Smith, housing director.

Smith reported to the board that, even after these steps, there are about 200 students who wish to live in the residence halls who cannot be accommodated. An appeal has been made to the community for student housing, he reported.

Dr. Leestamper advised the regents that the university's rates for room and board may have to be increased for the 1976-77 school year because of rising costs of food and labor. There was a preliminary discussion about the future use of the university farm, and Dr. Leestamper said a study of the matter will be initiated.

Dr. William L. Tomlinson Jr. of St. Louis, board president, reported that a committee of two alumni, two faculty members, a student and an administrator will be formed to consider policies and procedures relating to the naming of university buildings. Dr. David Strand, dean of the university, will chair the group.

In other business, the board:

--Selected Oct. 26 as the date for Dr. Leestamper's inauguration.

--Approved a proposal for Southeast Missouri State to affiliate with the Ohio College Library Center, a computer network of 110 colleges and regional library centers which will give the university "instant" access to thousands of resources not available in Kent Library.

--Discussed the need for professional liability insurance for all university employes and agreed to secure bids and purchase such a policy as soon as possible.

--Approved a Faculty Senate proposal to eliminate a two-week restriction on paid sick leave for pregnant faculty and staff women.

The next meeting was set for Sept. 25 at 9 a.m. in Dr. Leestamper's office.

TEL AVIV (AP) — Producer-director Wolf Vollmar says he's offered Elizabeth Taylor the feminine lead in a film to be shot in Israel.

Vollmar said Wednesday that Miss Taylor would play opposite Richard Burton, who has already agreed to play a lead role in the movie "Abakarov," the story of a Russian pilot who immigrates to Israel.

Burton and Miss Taylor arrived here recently to inspect the locations.

Vollmar said he had no information on the possible remarriage of Burton and Miss Taylor, who were dicorced 14 months ago and reconciled last week in Switzerland.

If Miss Taylor accepts the part, it would be their first pairing in a film since the divorce. Spokesmen for the couple announced last week they had permanently reconciled, and Burton reportedly spoke of a possible wedding in Israel.

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Trial has been rescheduled for Friday for James Rand Agnew, son of former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, who is aaccused of peering through the bedroom window of a young married couple.

The trespassing trial had been scheduled for Wednesday, but Agnew told District Court Judge Sol. J. Friedman that his attorney was ill and unable to attend.

Friedman granted the postponement but told Agnew, 28, to be prepared to stand trial Friday. The judge said if Agnew's attorney is still ill, he should bring another.

The couple said they spotted Agnew peering into their bedroom window July 7.

He is the only son and second oldest of four children of the former vice president.

HENDERSON, N.C. (AP) — "Almost everywhere we go we are recognized and people treat us kind of special," says President Ford's son, Mike. Ford said he and his wife, Gayle, would like to be treated like just another couple.

"We would like to break out of this identity crisis and just be identified as Mike and Gayle Ford, not the President's son and his wife," he said.

The young Fords, along with two other couples, vacationed at nearby Kerr Lake last weekend. Ford was interviewed by the Henderson Daily Dispatch.

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Singer Peggy Lee says in a $15 million suit her former personal secretary mishandled her money and embezzled an undetermined amount of it from her.

Miss Lee's attorney, Louis Bachleder, said Wednesday the secretary, Betty Jungheim, was fired last January. He said she had worked for Miss Lee, 54, since 1970.

Two Dexter women and juvenile arrested

DEXTER — Police arrested two Dexter woman and an identified juvenile at the Stovall store on South Walnut Wednesday afternoon.

Janice Cook was charged with petit theft and was fined $20 by Police Judge Herb Aarant in City Court Wednesday night, and Diane Vaughn, charged with disturbing the peace, was fined $35.

Police also reported today that vending machines outside the Marine service station on Highway 114 West were broken into Wednesday night.

Owner Ron Davidson told police that $4.80 was taken from a candy machine and that a total of $30 in damage was done to the candy machine and a soft-drink machine.

Another soft-drink machine at S&R Car Wash on Highway 114 West was turned over sometime Wednesday night.

In the 13th century, England's King John hunted game near Kingsclere, in Hampshire, forcing the inhabitants to feed and house him and his retinue each time he came. On one visit, he was so badly bitten by harvest bugs he hastily departed. Grateful townspeople erected a weathervane in the shape of the insect, and it still tops the church there.

SeMo will ask for funds increase

CAPE GIRARDEAU--Southeast Missouri State University's Board of Regents has been advised that the university will ask for an appropriation of $11,879,766 for the next fiscal year, an increase of more than 28 per cent over the current year.

Dr. Robert E. Leestamper, president of Southeast Missouri State since July 1, told the regents that the increase is dictated by the formula of the Missouri Coordinating Board for Higher Education. The formula directs Missouri's institutions of higher education to calculate their instructional costs in a certain way, then allows a percentage of that cost for institutional support.

The Southeast Missouri State president acknowledged that he does not expect the legislature and the governor to approve the entire 28 per cent increase. He also noted there is a conflict between the formula of the CBHE and the guidelines of the state budget office.

The budget office guidelines, if followed by Southeast Missouri State, would allow a 7-8 per cent increase in the university's appropriation for the next fiscal year, it was noted.

Besides operating funds, Southeast Missouri State likely will also seek almost $2 million for capital improvements for fiscal 1977. The regents were given a list of possible capital improvement projects and were asked to review it and bring questions to the next meeting.

Major items on the list were $600,000 for additions to Serena Industrial Arts Building, $415,000 for construction of a general services building which would serve as a central receiving and storage facility, $205,500 for a campus centralized climate control system and $160,000 for continued construction of a campus underground electrical primary distribution system.

The regents were told that Southeast Missouri State's enrollment will probably be up by about 200 this fall, and they learned that the university's residence halls are overflowing and some male students will be housed temporarily in motel rooms when school starts on Aug. 25. The rooms vacated by the men will be assigned to women, according to Shelton "Butch" Smith, housing director.

Smith reported to the board that, even after these steps, there are about 200 students who wish to live in the residence halls who cannot be accommodated. An appeal has been made to the community for student housing, he reported.

Dr. Leestamper advised the regents that the university's rates for room and board may have to be increased for the 1976-77 school year because of rising costs of food and labor. There was a preliminary discussion about the future use of the university farm, and Dr. Leestamper said a study of the matter will be initiated.

Dr. William L. Tomlinson Jr. of St. Louis, board president, reported that a committee of two alumni, two faculty members, a student and an administrator will be formed to consider policies and procedures relating to the naming of university buildings. Dr. David Strand, dean of the university, will chair the group.

In other business, the board:

--Selected Oct. 26 as the date for Dr. Leestamper's inauguration.

--Approved a proposal for Southeast Missouri State to affiliate with the Ohio College Library Center, a computer network of 110 colleges and regional library centers which will give the university "instant" access to thousands of resources not available in Kent Library.

--Discussed the need for professional liability insurance for all university employes and agreed to secure bids and purchase such a policy as soon as possible.

--Approved a Faculty Senate proposal to eliminate a two-week restriction on paid sick leave for pregnant faculty and staff women.

The next meeting was set for Sept. 25 at 9 a.m. in Dr. Leestamper's office.

Grid playoffs expanded

The Missouri State High School Activities Association Board of Control has decided to expand the state football playoffs by adding quarterfinal round games, prompting a variety of reactions by area grid coaches. While most of the comments about the change are favorable, some coaches brought out problems that the change could bring in its first year.

In the past, only one team from each of the state's four district qualified for the playoffs in each enrollment classification. But with the addition of the quarterfinal game, two schools from each district will now make the playoffs.

"This is a great thing for us," said new Charleston head coach Don Flowers, whose squad has narrowly missed making the playoffs twice recently, yielding to St. Louis area schools.

Jackson coach Paul Webber echoed the comments of many of the coaches, saying, "Anytime you get a chance to participate in state play in any sport, it's a great thing."

Tom Telle of Poplar Bluff, whose squad could very well be involved in the playoffs this fall, said that the change would be good for the three class 4-A teams in the area (Poplar Bluff, Cape Central and Sikeston). "Now we've got a little better chance to get into the playoffs than we did before," said the Poplar Bluff mentor, who pointed out that metropolitan St. Louis teams with enrollments approaching 2,000 or more had always represented the district in the past.

But while all the coaches were favorable to the changes in the playoff system, they were quick to point out the scheduling problems that could occur.

As the schedule is set up now, quarterfinal round games will be played on either Friday, November 14 or Saturday, November 15. Ten Southeast Missouri teams have games scheduled for the 14th, and several of them, most notably Cape Central, could possibly have a shot at making the playoffs.

For such teams, cancellation of the final game of the season might become necessary. The MSHSAA has made a provision for rescheduling of cancelled games after the playoffs are over, but this alternative would be an undesirable one. As one coach put it, "It would be almost impossible to keep my team up for a game that has been postponed for a couple of weeks."

Other coaches have brought out that such a replay of cancelled games would run into basketball season.

In some cases, cancellation of a regularly scheduled game could be an added headache. For example, traditional rivals Dexter and Malden are scheduled to meet on November 14. Although it is unlikely, the possibility does exist that one of those teams might be involved in the playoffs, forcing the cancellation of what is usually a barnburner of a football game.

Although the problem discussed here is a real one for the season immediately ahead, there does appear to be a solution ahead. This is the final season that schools will be allowed to play a ten games schedule in eleven weeks. Beginning in 1976, the schedule for each team will be over before the quarterfinal playoff round begins.

Despite the temporary imperfections that the playoff system has, the addition of the semifinal round should be a great improvement to the playoff set-up. Not only will it allow more athletes to compete on a state level, but it will add a new dimension excitement to the sport of high school football in Missouri.

Jr. stars battle back

Despite the early disappointment of bowing out of the double-elimination District Tournament after only two games, Sikeston's Junior Babe Ruth All-Stars rebounded to compile an impressive record in post-season play.

Picked as one of the favorites going into the district event at Bertrand, the Sikeston squad dropped a heartbreaker to Jackson in the first game, losing 4-3. The shock of their opening round loss was evident as the 1974 state runner-ups were bombed by Tri-County in the loser's bracket contest."

Nonetheless, the Sikeston squad didn't let their failure at Bertrand ruin their play. They came back to capture first place in the four team Portageville Invitational Tournament, a double-elimination event. They started out with a 6-4 win over Portageville and then came back to shutout Caruthersville 4-0. After a series of rains which halted play for almost a week, the Stars lost to Portageville 4-3, setting up a third contest with the host squad. This time, the Sikeston boys prevailed 9-7 and carried home the first-place trophy.

While the All-Stars were involved in the final stages of the Portageville tournament, the Charleston Invitational Tournament was going on. Sikeston avenged a loss in the district tournament by nipping Tri-County 2-1. In the semifinal round, they bombed Bloomfield 8-3 to move into the finals against district champion Chaffee-Illmo-Scott City. Sikeston was forced to settle for second place, however, as they bowed to the eventual third place state finishers 4-1.

Young had nothing but praise for his crew. "All of the boys gave 110 percent on the field. I really appreciated their effort."

Young said that the hard work put in by the team was especially apparent when the squad was involved in tournaments at both Portageville and Charleston. During one stretch, they played five games in four nights, winning three of the five.

Team members for this year's All-Stars were Eddie Wasson, Don Marks, Garland Beaudean, Tee Grojean, Roger Cloud, Tim Lawrence, Don Francis, Bruce Buchanan, Russell Deal, Jon Moore, Ron Hurley, Jeff Young, John Greer, Joe Dial and Jeff Miller. Ferrell Wasson, Charlie Campbell and Bob Miller assisted Young in coaching the team.

An Augusta, Georgia youngster, Donald Bailey (left) went on his first fishing trip recently near Sikeston and teamed with his cousin, Kenneth Hyslip of Sikeston, for a 20-pound catch. Bailey is the 12-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bailey of Augusta and Hyslip is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Syslip of route three Sikeston.

Red Birds flutter

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The forgotten man of the Houston Astros' pitching staff, Jim York, may have launched a new career.

At least that's what the 6-foot-3 right-hander hopes after celebrating his 28th birthday with a 5-1 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals Wednesday night.

"I was very surprised," conceded York, 2-2, who until last week had pitched in 161 major league games, all in relief, during parts of seven seasons.

"Bill Virdon came up to me in Chicago and said he was going to use me," recalled York after his second start. "If I get to pitch a lot I'd like to be in the bullpen," he said, "but right now I'd just as soon start."

Whether starting or relieving, York's seven innings on the mound at the outset against the Cards had to offer him respite.

And, seizing the opportunity, he restricted St. Louis to five hits before a blister on his pitching hand in the eighth forced him to give way to Jose Sosa.

"I had a little better rhythm and I had a little better idea of what I was doing," he noted in comparing the performance with his first start on Saturday, a 14-12 victory over the Cubs.

"After about the first inning I threw a lot of fast balls," York said. "It's a whole new world out there as a starter."

York's pitching, including clutch deliveries which helped him overcome five walks, was meticulous in contrast to an inadequate Cardinal defense.

Two of five St. Louis errors staked Houston to a 2-0 lead in a hitless second inning and another accounted for a run following Wilbur Howard's triple in the fifth.

Cesar Cedeno, Bob Watson and Jose Cruz hammered singles in the fourth for three of five Astro hits, and all the winners needed later was tight pitching.

"He (York) threw the ball in some pretty good places, but he gave us some pretty good pitches to hit too," Cards Manager Red Schoendienst said.

"We just had a bad night, that's all I can say," added Schoendienst, whose club missed a chance to move only two games out of first place in the National League East.

The start represented the longest duty on the mound for York since pitching eight innings in relief for the American League's Kansas City Royals in 1971.

"When I was with Kansas City I started late and they put me in the bullpen," remarked York, who had pitched only 17 1-3 previous Houston innings this season.

"I did a good job, so I stayed there," he recalled. "After a while they give you a label and you never get a chance to do anything else."

Moore loses pair

SEATTLE, Wash. — Sugar Creek, Mo., champions of the Mid-west Plains Sectional Tournament held two weeks ago in Sikeston, made a valiant effort to repeat as national Senior Babe Ruth League champions, but a pair of identical 1-0 losses while star hurler Mike Moore was on the mound led to their elimination from the Tournament of Champions.

The two teams to beat Sugar Creek, Kirkland, Wash. and Seattle hooked up in the championship game last Sunday, with Kirkland defeating the host squad 1-0 to claim the 16-18 year old title.

A superstitious fan might have thought that fate was against Moore and Sugar Creek, judging by the manner which they lost both games they dropped. In their opener, Moore allowed only three hits against the eventual champs only to be beaten 1-0. Kirkland got their only run in the first inning on a walk, a stolen base, a bunt single and a sacrifice fly.

In the loser's bracket, the Missouri boys began the comeback trail with a 6-3 win over Narragansett, R.I. A four-run third inning was instrumental in that victory, which saw the losers commit five errors. Terry Sutcliffe, Bob Halastik, and John Sweeney had crucial hits in the big third frame.

Jeff Cornell showed that Moore wasn't the only good pitcher Sugar Creek had when he threw a no-hitter against Irving Lake, Illinois the same evening. Sugar Creek broke up a pitching duel with a run in the sixth and two more in the seventh as they won 3-0 to stay alive in the tournament.

The road through the loser's bracket continued the next day as Brooklyn, N.Y. became the third team to be eliminated by Sugar Creek. Three different pitchers worked as the Missourians claimed a 4-2 win. Mike Radcliff drove in the winning run in the fourth when he singled to score Jim Hall, who had doubled.

When Kirkland defeated their Washington neighbors, Seattle, later that day in a battle between undefeateds, it set up a loser's bracket contest between Sugar Creek and Seattle. Mike Moore, who had relieved only the day before against Brooklyn, took the mound against Seattle and was at his flame-throwing best. But, as in the opener, luck was not with the fourth-round draft choice of the Boston Red Sox. Despite pitching a no-hitter, Moore got the loss as Sugar Creek dropped another 1-0 decision to the hosts. It wasn't exactly a classic rally for Seattle, but the run they got, scored in the sixth inning, counted just the same. Gene Picchena led off the inning by being hit by a pitch. Moore picked Picchena off base, but Picchena beat a throw to second to get credit for a stolen base. Moore got two hitters to pop up while trying to bunt, leaving the runner at second with two out. Picchena gambled by trying to steal third, and the move paid off when catcher Ray Rossiter's throw sailed into left field, allowing the runner to score.

HAZEL PARK, Mich. (AP) — The Hazel Park Racing Association announced Wednesday it will discontinue Sunday racing, effective immediately.

"The unreasonable high labor costs imposed upon us by our employes makes the continuation of racing on Sunday impractical," track President Herb Tyner said in a letter to state racing commissioner F.F. Fauri.

Moore loses pair

SEATTLE, Wash. — Sugar Creek, Mo., champions of the Mid-west Plains Sectional Tournament held two weeks ago in Sikeston, made a valiant effort to repeat as national Senior Babe Ruth League champions, but a pair of identical 1-0 losses while star hurler Mike Moore was on the mound led to their elimination from the Tournament of Champions.

The two teams to beat Sugar Creek, Kirkland, Wash. and Seattle hooked up in the championship game last Sunday, with Kirkland defeating the host squad 1-0 to claim the 16-18 year old title.

A superstitious fan might have thought that fate was against Moore and Sugar Creek, judging by the manner which they lost both games they dropped. In their opener, Moore allowed only three hits against the eventual champs only to be beaten 1-0. Kirkland got their only run in the first inning on a walk, a stolen base, a bunt single and a sacrifice fly.

In the loser's bracket, the Missouri boys began the comeback trail with a 6-3 win over Narragansett, R.I. A four-run third inning was instrumental in that victory, which saw the losers commit five errors. Terry Sutcliffe, Bob Halastik, and John Sweeney had crucial hits in the big third frame.

Jeff Cornell showed that Moore wasn't the only good pitcher Sugar Creek had when he threw a no-hitter against Irving Lake, Illinois the same evening. Sugar Creek broke up a pitching duel with a run in the sixth and two more in the seventh as they won 3-0 to stay alive in the tournament.

The road through the loser's bracket continued the next day as Brooklyn, N.Y. became the third team to be eliminated by Sugar Creek. Three different pitchers worked as the Missourians claimed a 4-2 win. Mike Radcliff drove in the winning run in the fourth when he singled to score Jim Hall, who had doubled.

When Kirkland defeated their Washington neighbors, Seattle, later that day in a battle between undefeateds, it set up a loser's bracket contest between Sugar Creek and Seattle. Mike Moore, who had relieved only the day before against Brooklyn, took the mound against Seattle and was at his flame-throwing best. But, as in the opener, luck was not with the fourth-round draft choice of the Boston Red Sox. Despite pitching a no-hitter, Moore got the loss as Sugar Creek dropped another 1-0 decision to the hosts. It wasn't exactly a classic rally for Seattle, but the run they got, scored in the sixth inning, counted just the same. Gene Picchena led off the inning by being hit by a pitch. Moore picked Picchena off base, but Picchena beat a throw to second to get credit for a stolen base. Moore got two hitters to pop up while trying to bunt, leaving the runner at second with two out. Picchena gambled by trying to steal third, and the move paid off when catcher Ray Rossiter's throw sailed into left field, allowing the runner to score.

"The unreasonable high labor costs imposed upon us by our employes makes the continuation of racing on Sunday impractical," track President Herb Tyner said in a letter to state racing commissioner F.F. Fauri.

The new Tom and Jerry

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Question: What seven-time Academy Award winner is considered too controversial for television?

Answer: You won't believe this, but it's "Tom and Jerry."

William Hanna and Joseph Barbera, who created the forever feuding cat and mouse 35 years ago, regained rights to the cartoon characters not long ago from MGM and hotfooted it over to the networks.

"We ran into a stone wall," Barbera reports, "because some citizens for the protection of the children of the world have decided cartoons are evil, that they're violent and full of mayhem.

"We showed them (the network folks) five of the old 'Tom and Jerrys' and they laughed so hard they had tears in their eyes. Then they said, 'We can't use them. If we put those on we'll get killed.'"

The reason is that the "Tom and Jerry" cartoons, with their classic slapstick antics in which characters often knock each other silly, are too violent by today's television standards — which were instituted a few years ago in response to pressure by parents' activist groups.

Never mind Tom and Jerry's seven Oscars andtheir worldwide popularity that spawned 147 cartoons between 1940 and 1947.

Hanna and Barbera weren't surprised the old ones wouldn't go, having had more than a little experience in the field.

Since departing MGM in 1957 to form their own animation studio, they have turned out more than 100 cartoon series for television, including "The Flintstones," "Yogi Bear" and the current hit, "Scooby-Doo."

What they proposed instead was making new "Tom and Jerry" cartoons — the first they'd done in 18 years.

There would still be that marvelous friendship between natural adversaries, but they would be put in more "socially acceptable" situations.

That idea appealed to ABC, and it ordered 48 seven-minute cartoons for a new Saturday morning "Tom and Jerry" series beginning Sept. 6. Hanna and Barbera are personally involved in the production.

"They're not chasing each other anymore," Barbera says of his old friends. "It used to be that Tom would pick on Jerry at the beginning, which would give Jerry the right to defend himself. Now they work together."

A sample viewing indicates Tom and Jerry haven't lost their charm or their ability to create laughs. Since they don't talk — they never did — the emphasis is on action and sight gags and those crazy things that can only happen in cartoons. 4

In one of the new cartoons, for instance, Tom and Jerry are on a pirate ship. Their misadventures cause the boat to sink at least five times but come the next scene it's always right back afloat.

"I'm just as enthusiastic about Tom and Jerry as I was 20 years ago," Barbera says.

"Unless people went back and saw the old ones, I don't think they'll know there's a difference."

Dr. Lamb

Care needed for hiatal hernia

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a hiatal hernia which causes severe heartburn and gas. When I swallow certain foods I have very loud hiccoughs. Can a hernia get larger? Will it harm the hernia to eat what I please as long as I take medicine at mealtime and between meals?

DEAR READER — A hernia of a portion of the stomach through an enlarged hole in the diaphragm is a common occurrence. You can demonstrate some degree of this in as high as 50 per cent of people over 50 years of age.

The heartburn comes from leaking acid stomach contents out of the stomach into the lower esophagus (food tube) where it joins the stomach at the location where the stomach herniates through the diaphragm.

The hernia disrupts the normal closure mechanism that prevents leaking stomach contents backward. You can have a hiatal hernia and not have this problem, or you can have a faulty closure mechanism without the hernia.

A lot of the management of a hiatal hernia is directed toward neutralizing the acid in the stomach and preventing leaking of the contents backward. These measures help prevent the heartburn. There is a good reason to try to prevent heartburn, because it is a symptom of chemical irritation of the lower esophagus. The hernia may or may not get larger, but the constant irritation of the lower esophagus can cause it to contract and scar until it becomes difficult for food to pass through the damaged area into the stomach.

To prevent this disagreeable complication, it is important that you follow your doctor's directions carefully. Your living habits are just as important as your medicines, including eating small meals, not lying down a ter eating, not wearing any constricting garment or belt a ound your waist and avoiding bending over.

If you want more information on hiatal hernia and how to manage your daily living habits with it, write to me in care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019, send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents and ask for The Health Letter on hiatal hernia, number 4-8.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Do ice-cold beverages like tea or coke, or the eating of ice cubes, have any adverse effect on the heart, the heart rate, high blood pressure, emphysema or ulcers?

DEAR READER — Not usually, but I'm not convinced that cold fluids are entirely harmless. If you fill the stomach with ice water it will chill the underneath surface of the heart. The heart rests on the diaphragm over the stomach like sitting on a pillow. The chilled water will result in changes in the electrocardiogram (T wave changes).

I have seen several cases of young men (one 21 and other 24) who drank lots of cold liquids just after vigorous exercise, as during a football game, who developed chest pain thereafter and had a heart attack. I do not know whether the attack would have occurred anyway or not. But with the knowledge that cold fluids chill the heart and knowing that the arteries to the heart can go into spasm, I have always suspected that the cold caused the attack.

For this reason, I think anyone who is very hot or has been exercising should not drink cold liquids, but should drink liquids that are only lightly cool, as ordinary tap water, at least until after they have cooled down and rested from the exertion.

Care needed for hiatal hernia

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a hiatal hernia which causes severe heartburn and gas. When I swallow certain foods I have very loud hiccoughs. Can a hernia get larger? Will it harm the hernia to eat what I please as long as I take medicine at mealtime and between meals?

DEAR READER — A hernia of a portion of the stomach through an enlarged hole in the diaphragm is a common occurrence. You can demonstrate some degree of this in as high as 50 per cent of people over 50 years of age.

The heartburn comes from leaking acid stomach contents out of the stomach into the lower esophagus (food tube) where it joins the stomach at the location where the stomach herniates through the diaphragm.

The hernia disrupts the normal closure mechanism that prevents leaking stomach contents backward. You can have a hiatal hernia and not have this problem, or you can have a faulty closure mechanism without the hernia.

A lot of the management of a hiatal hernia is directed toward neutralizing the acid in the stomach and preventing leaking of the contents backward. These measures help prevent the heartburn. There is a good reason to try to prevent heartburn, because it is a symptom of chemical irritation of the lower esophagus. The hernia may or may not get larger, but the constant irritation of the lower esophagus can cause it to contract and scar until it becomes difficult for food to pass through the damaged area into the stomach.

To prevent this disagreeable complication, it is important that you follow your doctor's directions carefully. Your living habits are just as important as your medicines, including eating small meals, not lying down a ter eating, not wearing any constricting garment or belt a ound your waist and avoiding bending over.

If you want more information on hiatal hernia and how to manage your daily living habits with it, write to me in care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019, send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents and ask for The Health Letter on hiatal hernia, number 4-8.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Do ice-cold beverages like tea or coke, or the eating of ice cubes, have any adverse effect on the heart, the heart rate, high blood pressure, emphysema or ulcers?

DEAR READER — Not usually, but I'm not convinced that cold fluids are entirely harmless. If you fill the stomach with ice water it will chill the underneath surface of the heart. The heart rests on the diaphragm over the stomach like sitting on a pillow. The chilled water will result in changes in the electrocardiogram (T wave changes).

I have seen several cases of young men (one 21 and other 24) who drank lots of cold liquids just after vigorous exercise, as during a football game, who developed chest pain thereafter and had a heart attack. I do not know whether the attack would have occurred anyway or not. But with the knowledge that cold fluids chill the heart and knowing that the arteries to the heart can go into spasm, I have always suspected that the cold caused the attack.

For this reason, I think anyone who is very hot or has been exercising should not drink cold liquids, but should drink liquids that are only lightly cool, as ordinary tap water, at least until after they have cooled down and rested from the exertion.

Chain Saw Artist Uses For Fast Wood Carving

By DIANE MINARCIN

PLAINFIELD, Vt. (AP) — Transforming a log into Don Quixote in three hours requires a special artist's tool — one that Jack Dowd found among the Vermont woodsmen's standard equipment.

Wielding a chain saw, Dowd has earned a reputation as the world's fastest wood carver. He makes his living by turning logs into people, cutting away at the wood in record time.

A former art teacher, Dowd took up wood sculpturing with hammer and chisel about three years ago and found that it took him an entire summer to finish one small figure.

"I said if I ever had a tool to get away the wood in a hurry, I'd enjoy carving. That's when I tried a chain saw," he said.

With a 30-pound saw he can carve the body of a five-foot sea captain, Scotsman or Don Quixote in a couple of hours. The finishing touches and the face are hammered and chiseled in about 40 minutes.

The figures sell for between $250 and $600, and Dowd figures he earns roughly $100 an hour. In the past two years, he estimates he's carved about 120 people from logs.

He thinks in superlatives and his latest project is to complete the world's largest cigar store Indian out of a log 20 feet high by 4 feet in diameter for the Lancaster, N.H., Chamber of Commerce. Dowd figures it will take him about two days to complete the Indian.

"If it's not the largest, it will at least be the fastest one carved," he says.

Tall, bearded, animated, Dowd travels the fair and logging show circuit and finds the excitement of performing one of the advantages in his work.

"I really enjoy the crowd element," he admits. "I'm trying to make carving a spectator sport.

"It's kind of brash," he says, "doing something I enjoy as much as this and getting this much money for it."

His first figures were political or well known characters: Richard M. Nixon, Spiro T. Agnew, a series of cartoon characters. They've been sold and since then, he sculpts his own faces.

"Everyone is a challenge. I'm never sure what it's going to look like until it's finished," he says.

Dowd prefers to work in pine because the wood is soft and the grain good for burning.

"If the wood is softer, the work goes faster, and if I'm going to be the world's fastest, I have to work with fast wood. And painting can add three or four hours to the job," he explains.

Instead of painting the figures, Dowd burns them with an acetylene torch to give them an almost bronzed look; a wire brush brings out the grain and smooths the rough edges.

After the cigar store Indian, Dowd may tackle a project he's wanted to carry out for some time: carving the world's largest chessboard and chess pieces.

"There's a market for such things," he says. "It's average people with money."

Chain Saw Artist Uses For Fast Wood Carving

By DIANE MINARCIN

PLAINFIELD, Vt. (AP) — Transforming a log into Don Quixote in three hours requires a special artist's tool — one that Jack Dowd found among the Vermont woodsmen's standard equipment.

Wielding a chain saw, Dowd has earned a reputation as the world's fastest wood carver. He makes his living by turning logs into people, cutting away at the wood in record time.

A former art teacher, Dowd took up wood sculpturing with hammer and chisel about three years ago and found that it took him an entire summer to finish one small figure.

"I said if I ever had a tool to get away the wood in a hurry, I'd enjoy carving. That's when I tried a chain saw," he said.

With a 30-pound saw he can carve the body of a five-foot sea captain, Scotsman or Don Quixote in a couple of hours. The finishing touches and the face are hammered and chiseled in about 40 minutes.

The figures sell for between $250 and $600, and Dowd figures he earns roughly $100 an hour. In the past two years, he estimates he's carved about 120 people from logs.

He thinks in superlatives and his latest project is to complete the world's largest cigar store Indian out of a log 20 feet high by 4 feet in diameter for the Lancaster, N.H., Chamber of Commerce. Dowd figures it will take him about two days to complete the Indian.

"If it's not the largest, it will at least be the fastest one carved," he says.

Tall, bearded, animated, Dowd travels the fair and logging show circuit and finds the excitement of performing one of the advantages in his work.

"I really enjoy the crowd element," he admits. "I'm trying to make carving a spectator sport.

"It's kind of brash," he says, "doing something I enjoy as much as this and getting this much money for it."

His first figures were political or well known characters: Richard M. Nixon, Spiro T. Agnew, a series of cartoon characters. They've been sold and since then, he sculpts his own faces.

"Everyone is a challenge. I'm never sure what it's going to look like until it's finished," he says.

Dowd prefers to work in pine because the wood is soft and the grain good for burning.

"If the wood is softer, the work goes faster, and if I'm going to be the world's fastest, I have to work with fast wood. And painting can add three or four hours to the job," he explains.

Instead of painting the figures, Dowd burns them with an acetylene torch to give them an almost bronzed look; a wire brush brings out the grain and smooths the rough edges.

After the cigar store Indian, Dowd may tackle a project he's wanted to carry out for some time: carving the world's largest chessboard and chess pieces.

"There's a market for such things," he says. "It's average people with money."

Dexter Creek.

No matter what the name, the people in the area have long disagreed about what should be done.

The City Council decided on May 5 to stop plans for construction of the district after an apparent majority of the people in the district came out against it. At that time a petition was presented to the council with 30 signatures opposed to the district and 19 in favor.

However, a biologist for the Missouri Clean Water Commission, told those opposed to the district, "You will have to upgrade your facilities to comply with state law, which will cost you much more in the long run."

One opponent answered, "We will not change our minds. The price is too high and we cannot afford it."

Gaines pointed out this week that if sewer lines are not installed, each home owner will have to treat his own sewage, which would cost much more than the installation of the sewer lines.

Within two weeks after the decision not to construct the lines, the council reversed its decision and, on May 19, decided to construct the district after all.

That decision was made after a petition containing 48 signatures in favor of the project was submitted to the council. Several of the names on the petition belonged to persons who had opposed the district on the earlier petition.

Some residents, however, are still firmly opposed to the district. At the May 19 meeting, one property owner said, "Even though a decision has been made to go ahead with the sewer, we want it to be known we are still opposed to the high cost."

The number of cases of measles reported in the U.S. from Oct. 1971 has declined 422 per cent as compared to a year ago, according to the National Center for Disease Control. Widespread use of the new vaccines is given as the reason.

Students work for Bentsen rally

Political apathy among America's young people is supposedly greater today than at anytime in our nation's history. This national trend toward apathy had little effect on the performance of about 20 Sikeston High School students who have served as volunteers for U. S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen's "Old Fashioned Political Rally" tonight at the Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo Grounds.

The Sikeston Students for Bentsen Committee have assisted Sen. Bentsen's staff in such activities as telephoning, distributing leaflets, operating mobile sound units and traveling to surrounding towns to distribute information about the presidential candidate's appearance in Sikeston.

Tony Ford, president of the Sikeston High School Student Council, served as chairman of Students For Bentsen. Also serving in leadership positions were David Butler and Marc Eaves, who were vice chairmen of the committee.

The rally will begin at 8 p.m. and will feature entertainment by Minnie Pearl, Tommy Overstreet and the Nashville Express and Buck Trent and Sugar. Admission is free to the public.

State school opens Tuesday

MALDEN—State School for Severely Handicapped Children No. 10 will open Tuesday, with classes to begin at 9:30 a.m.

Buses will make their regularly scheduled runs, and lunch will be served on the first day of school.

Clarence Bennett of Malden will be the teacher in charge at the school.

Dexter Creek.

No matter what the name, the people in the area have long disagreed about what should be done.

The City Council decided on May 5 to stop plans for construction of the district after an apparent majority of the people in the district came out against it. At that time a petition was presented to the council with 30 signatures opposed to the district and 19 in favor.

However, a biologist for the Missouri Clean Water Commission, told those opposed to the district, "You will have to upgrade your facilities to comply with state law, which will cost you much more in the long run."

One opponent answered, "We will not change our minds. The price is too high and we cannot afford it."

Gaines pointed out this week that if sewer lines are not installed, each home owner will have to treat his own sewage, which would cost much more than the installation of the sewer lines.

Within two weeks after the decision not to construct the lines, the council reversed its decision and, on May 19, decided to construct the district after all.

That decision was made after a petition containing 48 signatures in favor of the project was submitted to the council. Several of the names on the petition belonged to persons who had opposed the district on the earlier petition.

Some residents, however, are still firmly opposed to the district. At the May 19 meeting, one property owner said, "Even though a decision has been made to go ahead with the sewer, we want it to be known we are still opposed to the high cost."

The number of cases of measles reported in the U.S. from Oct. 1971 has declined 422 per cent as compared to a year ago, according to the National Center for Disease Control. Widespread use of the new vaccines is given as the reason.

Students work for Bentsen rally

Political apathy among America's young people is supposedly greater today than at anytime in our nation's history. This national trend toward apathy had little effect on the performance of about 20 Sikeston High School students who have served as volunteers for U. S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen's "Old Fashioned Political Rally" tonight at the Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo Grounds.

The Sikeston Students for Bentsen Committee have assisted Sen. Bentsen's staff in such activities as telephoning, distributing leaflets, operating mobile sound units and traveling to surrounding towns to distribute information about the presidential candidate's appearance in Sikeston.

Tony Ford, president of the Sikeston High School Student Council, served as chairman of Students For Bentsen. Also serving in leadership positions were David Butler and Marc Eaves, who were vice chairmen of the committee.

The rally will begin at 8 p.m. and will feature entertainment by Minnie Pearl, Tommy Overstreet and the Nashville Express and Buck Trent and Sugar. Admission is free to the public.

State school opens Tuesday

MALDEN—State School for Severely Handicapped Children No. 10 will open Tuesday, with classes to begin at 9:30 a.m.

Buses will make their regularly scheduled runs, and lunch will be served on the first day of school.

Clarence Bennett of Malden will be the teacher in charge at the school.

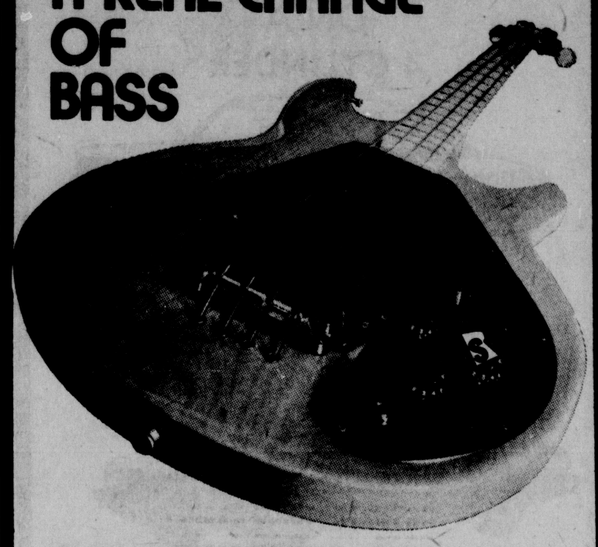
WE'VE GOT A REAL CHANGE OF BASS



Some of today's top bass players are putting their old instruments down and picking up on the Gibson Ripper.

The Ripper's got an electrical control system that summons up a whole new host of sounds. And that's just one of the reasons so many top artists are changing basses and playing the Ripper. Come in and experience the other reasons for yourself.

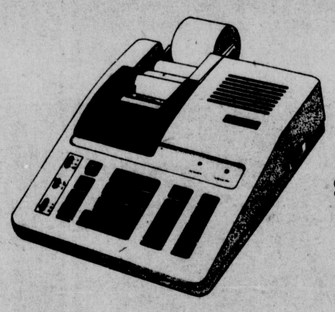
For the price of a good adding machine, you can have the silent electronic calculator with a big plus...

The Sharp Edge



$195.00

Until now, a lot of people have been forced into buying mechanical adding machines when what they really needed was a quality electronic printing calculator.

Well, now you've got it. The new Sharp CS-1151-the latest development of Sharp Qualitronics...built with the same measure of quality and dependability that goes into our largest programmable costing thousands. And yet the CS-1151 comes in at a price that the small businessman can easily afford.

But that's only the beginning. The CS-1151 has features you'd expect to find only on the higher-priced macines..or on Sharp. Features as rugged as Sharp's heavy-duty casing..or as pleasant as the complete silence of the CS-1151 between operations.

All in all, we'e justifiably proud of our new CS-1151. It's worthy of the name it carries..Sharp.
